GUESS WHO'S HERE

When he winks his whole massive forehead at you, those black brows flash signals of mellow humor, or herald the disturbance of a temper that bodes an adversary no good—that grinding, crashing anger that seeks to throttle and to crush whatever comes in its way. He's big and hairy and mannish, with the bronzed skin that shows the tanning of wind and sun and water. The old "War Lord" would break the neck of a foe and break his own neck for a friend. He loves the things that God made, and tolerates what man has devised. Begrimed with oil, splashed with gasoline, he hurtles up and down the river in his rakish launch, hailing and hailed from Wabasha to the Iowa line, predatory, roving, happy, with an eye to brush or fish and a great face beaming gladness with every breath of the river air he thrives upon. With his blue flannel shirt open wide about his rawhide neck, a mat of black hair just back of his incipient bald spot flung impertinently to the winds, a sombrero of "Merry Widow" proportions tilted insolently on the back of his huge head, his corduroys barely snared by a narrow belt caught carelessly at his waistband and his heavy jaw grinding "scraps" with primitive ferocity, he flirts dizzily past the channel lights, a phantom to shame a viking or tame a Captain Kidd. These river ways have known him since, as a boy, he plied them with the log raft, growing deep lunged and broad shouldered and fearless in the hard, dangerous life of the logger. Strong and untamed he grew, carving out his own little water-faring kingdom, in which he was lord by virtue of his daring and prowess. The boss of all rivermen, loved by a constituency of which he is banker, physician and adviser, he chug-chugs his strenuous way relentlessly through a life that's all his own. In politics he must be reckoned with, for he faithfully reflects the feelings of his people. He is a strong-handed dictator but never a tyrant, for a laugh sits on his brow ready to wrinkle his big face at the slightest provocation. He's always an optimist, this "Admiral of the Mississippi," for while others "knock" he always holz his hammer.

YARNS OF THE TOWN.

"It's the funniest thing," says Emil, sez'e, "why we can't land 'em!"

"Guess we're all in," says Jule, sez'e. "Wonder how those guys got 'em?"

Then a terrible suspicion took hold of Ruprecht.

"Say, Jule," sez'e, "maybe this ain't the mouth o' Wildcat, after all."

It was late on the afternoon of Sunday, Aug. 6 1911, A. D. And Messrs. Freas and Ruprecht turned on the gasoline and turned over the engine. Arrived home, Emil sought The Trio, to make sure that it WAS Wildcat. Then he looked knowingly at the noncommittal face of his pal, and whispered something about a seine. Early on the morning of the following Sunday they appeared again at the mouth of Wildcat, and again luck was not with them, as it was not with a whole procession of sportsmen who sought the hitherto neglected mouth of Wildcat during that fortnight.

And it all came about in this way:

Nick Bisen, erstwhile heavy-lifter on the La Crosse police force and now proprietor of a refreshment emporium at Brownsville, had been out on Wildcat creek, picking up a dozen fine trout. A thirsty trio of fly fishermen strolled into Nick's Place, and spying the trout trotted out a line of talk the purpose of which was the annexation of the speckled beauties.

Finally Nick made a proposition. He would consent to be separated from his catch if The Trio would advertise in the denizens of La Crosse sportsmen that they were caught on a fly in the Mississippi river in front of Nick's Place. And it was so agreed.

However, this looked too coarse to stand up and the story was varied to make it more plausible. The Trio strung the trout and bass on the same string, and on returning to La Crosse displayed them conspicuously in such places as were invaded, but volunteered no information.

Of course they attracted attention, but when approached on the all important question of where the trout came from The Trio looked mysterious and became noncommittal. However, before leaving each place one of The Trio would whisper, in strict confidence of course, that Wildcat creek had dried up, forcing the trout into the Mississippi, where they had been caught on a bass fly. The place was represented to be alive with the gamy little beauties, and thus and so.

And that's why Emil and Jule and a lot more of our sportsmen made mysterious pilgrimages to the mouth o' Wildcat and angled for speckled trout in the troutless Mississippi.

President of the Board of Public Works "Jim" Day had a narrow escape from death Thursday afternoon. He was hurrying down to resume his troubles as chief kick receiver of the water department about 1:30, pedaling his "bike" as hard as he could go. All of a sudden a little yellow dog darted out from the sidewalk. The inevitable happened, and in a few seconds the dog was fleeing in vocal terror up the street, and the president of the board of public works was ruefully surveying the disordered remains of his wheel. The foregoing doesn't really seem humorous enough for a place in this column, as it is no joke to kill the president of the board of public works, but the real scream comes later. President Day declares that he went straight back to his home and got his automobile, and came down the same street where the accident happened. As he got opposite the spot where the accident occurred, he slowed down. The dog was sitting on the curb.

"Come on, goldarn ye," the president avers he called, "you can't bust this machine."

PLANETS IN CONJUNCTION

A strikingly beautiful astronomical phenomenon of comparatively rare occurrence was witnessed by many when from 10 p. m. last night until daybreak the moon, Saturn and Mars were grouped.

It was a most beautiful sight—one rarely seen, and was best visible after midnight.

The planets rose here shortly after 11 o'clock at a point a little to the north of east, and their position was indicated by the rising moon, which was at about last quarter. The nearest approach of the planets to the moon was about fifty minutes before this. They remained quite close to the moon, however, until dawn, and were much more conspicuous as they rose towards the meridian.

The proximity of the planets will be noticeable for several nights, although Mars will be rapidly moving to the eastward of Saturn.

SAYS HE HELPED ROB TWO TRAINS

Bandit Held at Denver Thrusts Own Head Into Noose to Convict Accomplices

HE ADMITS KILLING OF TWO

Says He and Two Others Held Up Overland Limited at Ogden, Utah

DENVER, Col., Aug. 19.—A remarkable confession, in which a man, to obtain the conviction of two accomplices, practically thrusts his head into a noose, has been made to the local police by Frank M. Watson, who was arrested here last May for the police of Alliance, Neb. where he is wanted for robbing a safe.

Watson asserts that he and two other men, Joseph Collins of Omaha, and R. M. Roberts held up the Southern Pacific Overland Limited train at Reese, Utah, on the night of January 1, 1911, robbed about 100 passengers, killed a negro porter and wounded a passenger so that the latter died.

Watson also confesses complicity in the holdup of the Oregon Short Line Butte-Portland special, three miles west of Ogden, Utah, June 27, 1910.

He says Collins shot the negro porter, William Davis when the porter refused to throw up his hands and that he (Watson) ordered Collins to shoot.

Watson had previously told the police and postoffice inspector the location of nearly $10,000 worth of stamps which were stolen when the postoffice at Greeley, Col., was robbed, July 1, 1911. About three weeks ago Watson was taken to Sioux Falls, S. D., where he said the stuff was "planted."

He returned today unsuccessful in the quest. The fact that Watson "fell down" on this end of his story leads the police to suspect the confession is fabrication. Watson was cross examined by Chief Armstrong for four hours, but he stuck to the contention that his story of the holdups was true.

THE WEEK FINANCIAL

NEW YORK, Aug. 19—The weekly bank statement as issued today shows the following changes:

Excess lawful reserve, increase, $10,203,600.
Loans, decrease $24,924,000.
Specie, increase, $5,364,000.
Legal tenders, increase, $1,172,000
Net deposits, decrease $18,906,000
Circulation, increase $486,000.
Total loans $1,927,455,000.

The surplus of the banks is $35,432,350 as compared with $51,065,525 last year, and $19,967,175 two years ago.

(Copyright, 1911, by New York Evening Post Company.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 19. — This morning's stock market opened fractionally higher and during the first half hour the upward movement of prices continued rather briskly. Union Pacific went nearly two points above yesterday's closing, Reading advance 1⅝ and numerous other stocks ½ to one point. After this early recovery activity slackened and a slow reaction followed, running to a point or thereabouts in some of the stronger stocks. From this decline there was again a partial upward reaction and the market closed with irregular net advances for the day.

London 's stock exchange was closed for holiday and there was no substantial change reported by this morning's dispatches in the English railway strike situation.

The figures of the country's total bank exchanges for this week and last week showed that even with the present confessedly dull general trade the volume of checks thus drawn has been larger than in the corresponding period of any preceding year except 1909.

The western section between the Mississippi river and the Rocky mountains, however, shows a decrease which makes a striking contrast with such trade reaction periods as those of 1904 and 1908, when it was that very section which held its own in the clearing house exchanges, while the east and south reported enormous decreases.

MOTHER SUICIDE BABY STARVING

BODY IS COLD IN DEATH

Child Tugs at Hands of Dead Mother and Beats with Little Fists on the Door

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—Four year old Virginia Petersen, almost dead from starvation, was rescued this afternoon by the police from a locked room in a local apartment where for days she was held prisoner with the dead body of her mother, a suicide. An empty bottle labelled carbolic acid and thrown on the floor near the bed, told the police of self destruction.

The carefully locked windows and doors led them to the belief that the mother, suddenly deranged, had planned that the child should follow her to death.

Police Rescue Child

For two days, neighbors in apartments nearby had heard the plaintive cries of little Virginia and several had seen her tearful face pressed against the window pane. But no one thought the child was a prisoner in a death chamber slowly starving.

Her little feet pattered back and forth across the room and she tugged at the cold hands of her mother and pounded her baby fists on the unyielding door, until today, when the police burst into the room, they found the little golden haired baby crying pitifully on the floor, so exhausted that she could not move.

The reek of carbolic acid that penetrated the corridors caused the neighbors to investigate.

The door could not be forced, so the officers broke a window and climbed through. On the bed lay the blackened body of the mother, her hands and face fearfully burned by the acid. Little Virginia lay on the floor a few feet away, herself as still as the cold body of her mother. Hurriedly the blue coats caught up the child and revived her. She was rushed to the hospital in an ambulance, her weak voice whimpering over and over again: "Where's mama?"

At the hospital warm broth revived the little girl, but physicians say she is still in a precarious condition.

The mother, Mrs. Sarah E. Petersen was a widow. As near as the police can determine, she was recently employed in one of the government departments here and went to the Rivieria, an apartment house on H street northwest last October. Her little girl, Virginia, was the only occupant of the flat. Recently Mrs. Petersen has been besieging the police for protection against imaginary enemies.

Notes which the police found beside the dead woman's body today, were addressed to Inspector Boardman of the police department to whom she had often applied for aid against those whom she asserted, "persecuted her." They were said to indicate that the woman had taken the acid to end the fear of them.

A search of the apartment revealed the fact that the dead woman had been married three times. The names that appear on insurance policies which she left out in full view on the dresser were Mrs. Sarah E. English, Mrs. Sarah E. Pollock and Mrs. Sarah E. Petersen.

FIND BODY IN SWAMP

MYSTERIOUS CASE UNEARTHED IN DEEP SHRUBBERY IN LA CROSSE RIVER VALLEY

Lying face downward in the thick shrubbery in the La Crosse river bottoms just east of the C. M. & St. P. railway tracks the badly decomposed body of a man was found at noon today by William Ludigar, Milwaukee road switchman.

An open razor underneath the body leads the coroner and police to the theory that it was a suicide.

The skull was detached from the body while the flesh had fallen away.

An old fashioned wicker "hamper," containing clothing, a razor, razor strop, clothing and other personal effects, was found beside the skeleton. In the pocket of the supposed suicide's coat which had been thrown over the hamper, was found a memorandum book of the National bank of Anaconda, Mont. In it was a one cent stamp and the records of several card games, with the names Johnny, Carl, Tommy and Johnson It is believed that the name Johnson refers to the dead man.

The only clue as to the length of time that the body had been in the marsh before it was discovered, was a time table of the Cunard line of steamships, with the date of May 6, 1911, upon it. On the shirt found in the wicker basket was a Chinese laundry mark. The body is being held at the Fessler & Dahl undertaking rooms pending the coroner's inquest.

TYPHOID TIME IS HERE—FURSTMAN

ISSUES RULES FOR HEALTH

Commissioner Sets Down Maxims which if Followed Will Insure Long Life

This is typhoid time!

In August, September and October the germs of this dread disease are abroad, and the utmost precaution is necessary to safeguard the lives and health of all citizens.

Health Commissioner J. M. Furstman declared this morning that the greatest care should be exercised by residents of La Crosse during the next three months in demanding food that is absolutely clean, and that where the fever enters a home the greatest vigilance is necessary to keep the disease from spreading.

Typhoid germs are liable to be communicated in milk, water or from the discharge from persons afflicted. Dirty hands may also carry the typhoid germs, and persons who are in positions where they have to handle food and drink should be extremely careful to always keep their hands clean.

Foods are liable to be poisoned especially green stuff, by being manured with night soil, by flies crawling over it after feasting on a typhoid discharge, of which they are especially fond, and often by the filthy dust of the street.

Dr. Furstman advises citizens to wash thoroughly all vegetables and fruit intended to be eaten raw, to keep flies out of the house so far as possible by means of screens, fly paper and traps, or with the "swatter." All food supplies should be constantly covered so that flies cannot have access to them.

Continuing, Dr. Furstman said: "If all the discharges of every existing case of typhoid fever were instantly disinfected there would be no more typhoid fever in the world. In all families where there is a case of the fever I would suggest that discharges be disinfected to safeguard, not only other members of the family, but the neighbors as well Chloride of lime is the best typhoid disinfectant, and it should be constantly kept on hand and used as often as necessary during the day.

"Damp and unclean basements and yards weaken the health so that typhoid is more readily contracted and the cases are more severe. Clean up your premises; get rid of all refuse and filth. Fresh burned lime will dry basements and yards, and it should be used freely in such places.

"Cleanliness is not only next to godliness but it is the only safeguard against typhoid. Cleanliness of the person, cleanliness in every detail of housekeeping, cleanliness of everything to be taken into the stomach, cleanliness of those ill with the disease, are essential to wipe out the fever. Typhoid is the result of lack of cleanliness. It is, above all others, the filth disease.

Healthgrams

Life is short, far too short for many of us—much shorter than it need be for all of us. Saner living makes longer lives.

High living develops a low vitality.

To avoid contracting typhoid fever—swat every fly in your house.

A death from a preventable disease is an untimely death. Live right and die a natural death.

What some economical people keep from the doctor they give to the undertaker, and then some.

So long as consumptives expectorate in public places you may expect the grim reaper will find plenty to do.

Frown and you pass unnoticed—laugh and everybody turns around to rubber.

CANDIDATES MUST PUBLISH EXPENSES

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—President Taft today signed the campaign publicity bill, making the measure a law. The new statute provides for complete publicity of campaign expenditures of candidates for the house and senate before election, and limits the amount that each can spend in a single campaign to $5,000 for a candidate for the house, and $10,000 for a candidate for the senate.

DETECTIVES PREVENT STEALING OF CHILD

An unsigned letter bearing the California postmark was received by Walter Eitzen, banker and land owner. The letter demanded that $1,000 be delivered in a lonely place by 8 o'clock last night. Detectives watched the spot but the kidnapers failed to appear.

CONGRESS READY FOR ADJOURNMENT

Patchwork Conglomeration Passed by Senate for Cotton Bill Still Holds House

SENATE WAITS ON THE HOUSE

But Two Big Measures Result as Work of Special Session Called in March

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—With its legislative wheels practically clear congress today prepared for adjournment by Tuesday or Wednesday of next week.

In the house the patchwork conglomeration passed by the senate in lieu of the democratic cotton tariff revision bill and the compromise bill admitting Arizona and New Mexico to statehood, alone remain for action. The resolution for direct election of United States senators will probably go over in conference until next session.

The senate had practically nothing to do today but wait on the house.

But Two Big Measures

After five months and four days of unceasing grind, the congress of the United States today was able to show but two big legislative measures made into law—the Canadian reciprocity agreement and the bill for publicity of campaign contributions before elections.

The reapportionment bill, fixing the membership of the next house of representatives at 433 was another finished product turned out during the five months.

The democratic leaders were enthusiastic over the campaign material that they have fashioned from the happenings at the extra session. A great scheme of tariff revision,

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.— A concurrent resolution fixing Tuesday, August 22nd at 2 p. m. as the date and hour for adjournment of congress was today favorably reported by Senator Warren (Rep., Wyo.) from the senate committee on appropriations.

which the democrats declared would "cut down the tariff tax on the American people" has crumbled to dust, under the power of the president's veto. Reciprocity with Canada was the only reason given by the president for convening the extra session on March 15.

Bills Lost in Shuffle

Two democratic tariff bills, one revising the wool schedule, another placing meat and bread on the free list, have been lost in the shuffle. A third, revising the cotton tariffs, will also die aborning. Two of them—the wool bill and the free list bill, the president has vetoed. The democrats made ineffectual attempts to pass them over the veto. The other is in a haze of technical defeat between the senate and the house. The house cotton bill, in the form in which it passed the senate was reported to the house today from the ways and means committee by Chairman Underwood (Dem., Ala.) He announced that he would call the bill up for action on Monday.

The reports of the committee accept the senate amendments as to all of the additional tariff schedules affixed to the cotton bill. These include revision of the iron and steel, chemical and cotton machinery schedules and an amendment for free coal from Canada.

Exposition Bill to Taft

The bill authorizing the president to invite foreign, South and Central American nations to send representatives to the Panama-California exposition at San Diego, Cal., in 1915 was passed by the house today, 160 to 51.

Amendments providing that a proper site for the exposition must be secured and $2,000,000 subscribed to make the exposition a success, were added to the bill before its passage.

The republicans argued that in view of the president's apparent decision to veto all tariff bills this session, adjournment tonight would end all the difficulties of the present session.

Underwood said the democrats intended to pass the cotton bill.

"We will consider a senate resolution proposing an adjournment at five o'clock Tuesday evening," he said. "But the majority in the house cannot consent to an adjournment of congress until the president has had an opportunity either to improve or veto this cotton bill."

Representative Mann (Rep., Ill.) minority leader, declared that whatever the democrats might do, he believed that the house and congress would remain in session at least two weeks more.

Representative Lenroot (Rep., Wis.) who has assumed the leadership of the house progressives in the tariff fight, announced that the democrats could rely on no votes on LONDON, Aug. 19.—"A quarter of a million men have joined the general railway strike. It is the greatest industrial upheaval England has ever seen," said J. H. Thomas, M. P., and assistant secretary of the Amalgamated society of railway servants, today.

The ranks of the strikers are being constantly augmented everywhere. The government practically admits the statements of the strike leaders. The railway managers admit that in the provinces the roads are practically tied up. In the London district they are making desperate efforts to keep up a semblance of ordinary service. They claim that two-thirds of their employes have remained loyal.

The statement of the home office that food supplies were being moved was vigorously denied by Thomas and other leaders who declare that in another twenty-four hours every road in the United Kingdom would be at a standstill.

Violence is Lacking

The strike committee today conferred with representatives of the railway unions in Ireland and Scotland.

Most of the firms involved granted increased wages and recognition of the union. The condition of the women strikers was pitiful. Their leader, May McArthur, declared that most of them were facing starvation, but that they held out heroically to the last.

"It's a step away from the breadline, that's all," said the leader today. "Our women fought a glorious fight. With empty stomachs and famished children they never wavered and now with recognition of the union for the first time we expect to accomplish great improvement in working condition and better wages. This victory is but the first step in our fight to live."

REV. HENRY FAVILLE AT LAKE MILLS

LAKE MILLS, Wis., Aug. 19.—Rev. Henry Faville, pastor of the First Congregational church of La Crosse was one of the leading speakers at the homecoming here yesterday which was attended by between seven and eight thousand people.

Among the other speakers were Rev. Dr. John Faville of Appleton, E. G. Updike of Madison, E. E. Bigelow of Owatonna, Minn., the Rev. Webster Millar of Milwaukee, pastor of the Kingsley Methodist Episcopal church; Perry Millar of Kenosha; H. L. Perry, inspector of high schools,; A. D. West of Milton Junction; Willis Walter, health officer of Milwaukee, and M. H. Olbrech of Madison, who spoke in place of Senator La Follette, who had been expected.

Various ball games were played, Lake Mills defeating the Johnson Creeks, 3 to 2; the Stoughtons, 7 to 6, in a thirteen inning game; the Cambridges, 9 to 0, and the Juveniles defeated the Aero club of Milwaukee, 4 to 1.

FOOTBALL RULES ARE CHANGED

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—The official football guide for 1911, out today, contains many changes, and aspiring candidates will have to put in considerable time mastering the letter and spirit of the new rules. The intermission between the first and second and third and fourth periods is shortened, barely allowing time to transfer the ball, when it is put into play immediately.

A new ruling appears on the forward pass. Formerly the penalty of an incompleted forward pass was measured from the spot at which the pass was made, generally six or seven yards behind the scrimmage line. The new rule measures from the spot of the preceding "down."

ECZEMA

Also called Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk-Crust, Weeping Skin, etc.)

ECZEMA CAN BE CURED TO STAY, and when I say cured, I mean just what I say—C-U-R-E-D, and not merely patched up for awhile, to return worse than before. Remember I make this broad statement after putting ten years of my time on this one disease and handling in the mean-time a quarter of a million cases of this dreadful disease. Now, I do not care what all you have used, nor how many doctors have told you that you could not be cured—all I ask is just a chance to show you that I know what I am talking about. If you will write me TODAY, I will send you a FREE TRIAL of my mild, soothing, guaranteed cure that will convince you more in a day than I or anyone else could in a month's time. If you are disgusted and discouraged, I dare you to give me a chance to prove my claims. By writing me to-day you will enjoy more real comfort than you had ever thought this world holds for you. Just try it and you will see I am telling you the truth.

Championship Will Be Decided at Madison Next Saturday; Visitors Hold Trophy

The golf teams representing the Madison Golf club and the La Crosse Country club at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon took the field in the first 1911 battle for the famous Brittingham-Hixon cup which is now held by the Madison club.

Weather conditions are favorable and as the course is one of the best in the state good scores are expected. Among the golfers of the La Crosse club who are taking the lead are J. M. Hixon, Emil Niemyer and P. M. Gelatt.

The La Crosse golfers will play the return match at the Madison club links next Saturday which will decide the championship of the two clubs for this year. The La Crosse club is making a strong bid for the cup as the Madison club has already won the cup one year and will have it almost won if they capture the prize again this season. The team winning three out of five years will retain the trophy.

FARMER SAYS CARS ARE HIS'N

DES MOINES, Iowa, Aug. 19.—Like John Dietz, L. C. Dorran, a farmer living near Boone, is defying the powers of wealth and perhaps of the law in his effort to keep the Chicago & Northwestern railroad company from removing three of its cars from an abandoned spur track which is located on his property. The cars are "his'n," he declares, and he doesn't intend to let them get away from his property, even if he has to use his shotgun to enforce his demands.

A switching crew was sent out to get the cars, and found Dorran sitting on the fence with a shotgun over his knee. The crew got busy, but the cars did budge. Then Dorran informed the crew that he had chained the cars to the track, that they belonged to him and that it was time for them to take their "dinky" engine and "git" or suffer the consequences.

They "got."

Deputy United States Marshall George Bidwell left today to serve a writ of replevin on Dorran, and he went armed.

LUTHERANS END MEETING

MASON CITY, Iowa, Aug. 19.—The Lutheran League of Southern Minnesota and Northern Iowa has practically closed its convention here, the only work remaining being the election of officers and selecting the next place of meeting.

One of the features of yesterday's session was the address of Rev. J. A. Ness of Austin, Minn., on "Why Am I a Lutheran?" The pastor took the ground that Lutherans should not be Lutherans because they are born Lutherans, but because they know and believe in the fundamental principle upon which Lutheranism is based.

A HUMAN CARBURETOR

IOWA CITY, Iowa, Aug. 19. —An electric spark passing through the human body caused the explosion of a gasoline tank on an interurban railway car here yesterday, and Earl Brooks, 30 years old, the human conductor of the electricity, was badly burned. Surgeons believe he will live. Mr. Brooks was standing in an interurban car, when he touched a live wire connected in some way with the trolley. The current shot down through his body to the tank near which he was standing, and the explosion followed.

CHICAGO LAWYER AND WIFE CRUSHED TO DEATH IN EFFORT TO DODGE TRAIN; DRIVER HURT

MILWAUKEE, Wis. Aug. 19.—The body of William D. Ferguson, 45, a prominent Chicago lawyer, and that of his wife, are held for shipment in a Waukesha, Wis., undertaking establishment today while W. R. Cunningham of Lynchburg, Va., a companion of the Fergusons, is fighting for life with a crushed skull in a local hospital as a result of their automobile being struck by a train near Pewaukee, Wis., last night.

Cunningham, who acted as driver of the car, crashed it into a fence to avoid being struck by the train. The impact upset the machine, throwing the occupants back under the wheels of the passing cars. Mrs. Ferguson, who was the daughter of Col. John Fox, a Cincinnati millionaire, was instantly killed. Her husband died within an hour.

Hospital attendants expressed a faint ray of hope for Cunningham today, who is yet unable to speak but in a semi-conscious condition.

THINK TWO LOST LIVES

MANITOWOC, Wis., Aug. 19.—Did Messrs. Vetter and Robertson, two Harvey, Ill., men enroute from Depere to Chicago in a gasoline boat, lose their lives in Lake Michigan? The boat was found ten miles southeast of here without gasoline, and the theory is that the young men, fearing that they might be drifting out into the lake, abandoned the boat after attaching life preservers, and that they misjudged the distance to shore and lost their lives. Their clothes were found in the boat.

A TALK WITH WILSON

"One thing," said Governor Wilson, "has always struck me as unfair. When any vital question is being debated in congress, for example, whatever the president says will be reported everywhere, and will become known throughout the length and breadth of the land. But what is said in reply by those who oppose the president will not be universally reported nor become generally known. I felt the same thing during the last session of the state legislature here. I felt that whatever I said about the measures under discussion would be heard and believed, but that what was said in reply would not be equally widely known or credited. This was fundamentally unfair. Therefore I abstained from making statements that would be affected by this tendency. What I did, instead was this. I told the men who opposed me that I was ready to go down with them to their counties and debate the matter at issue with them before their own constituents. But the trouble was that they were not willing to go. In ways like this, by arousing, instructing, and directing public opinion, the governor may bring the right and worthy kind of pressure to bear on legislation.

"Take the case of Governor Hughes. Mr. Hughes began with the theory that his duty as governor was simply to recommend legislation, leaving it to the legislature to carry it out. But later on, when he saw that things were at a deadlock, he went out to the public, aroused public opinion by an aggressive campaign, and directed such a force of opinion upon the legislators that they were compelled to create the Public Service Commission to carry out the will of the public."

I asked Governor Wilson whether he would advocate a change giving the governor, or the president, the power to initiate legislation; to give him some such status in the legislature as the English Premier has. To this Governor Wilson replied:

"There is not the slightest practical difficulty in getting legislation introduced. What you suggest would simply introduce the British constitution. But I think it is better to go on doing things in our own way until we hit upon a distinctively American way of accomplishing what is needed."

The practical solution is, therefore, once more, leadership. I asked the governor how his ideal could be harmonized with the new methods, such as the "Oregon plan," which tended to throw all responsibility on the individual voter. To this the governor replied with a smile and an anecdote:

"When I was in Oregon on my western trip," he said, "and was studying the initiative, referendum, and recall, they told me that if I wished to study them all at once I should look under Mr. U'Ren's hat. I replied that I had much rather find responsibility under one man's hat than under no man's!"

We came back, therefore, to leadership. Governor Wilson made it clear that the real leader is not the man who impresses his own wishes and views on others, but rather he who rightly hears and rightly interprets the finest and best public opinion. He gathers the general inspiration and brings it to a focus.

"It is something like what Bagehot says of Sir Robert Peel: 'It was not that he did extraordinary things, but that he did ordinary things extraordinarily well. He is the true leader who interprets the general conscience rightly and rightly makes it operative.'"

In conclusion, I asked Governor Wilson whether there might not be some conflict between his view of leadership, inspiring as it is, and the accepted theory of American government, that the executive and legislative powers should be isolated and kept apart. To this the governor replied, and I find his reply profoundly suggestive:

"Is that really the American theory? Was it not rather a departure from the first ideal, a departure belonging to the day of lesser men? Did not Jefferson and Adams, and, most of all, Washington himself, exert, and intentionally exert, an immense influence on legislation? Is not that the true American ideal?"

A stirring and potent appeal. Then I asked the governor whether, if his ideal was leadership, and if the true leader is he who rightly interprets and makes effective the general conscience, he did not bring everything back, in the last analysis, to the general conscience. And was not this a tremendous expression of faith in the honesty and righteousness of the general mind?

Governor Wilson replied:

"Yes, necessarily so. How could it be otherwise?"—Charles Johnston, in Harper's Weekly.

WHAT TAFT HAS DONE

William Howard Taft has demonstrated his purpose to fight progressive legislation to the last ditch.

He has vetoed the Arizona-New Mexico statehood bill because the Arizona constitution provides the recall for judges.

He has vetoed the free list bill and the wool tariff bill on the pretext that congress should not have acted on the tariff until his tariff committee reported its findings, which would mean no relief from the injustice of the present schedule until another congress sits.

He has followed the Ballinger iniquity with the Controller Bay rascality.

Mr. Taft aspires to be elected president a second time. He has a fat chance.

The state railroad commission has decided that the meter plan is the only logical basis for the sale of water to residents of a city. This comes up in a Janesville case, but it is of interest in La Crosse, where it serves to reinforce the commission's unofficial endorsement of the fight Dr. Anderson has made to secure the general installation of meters.

Unless the bridge is made free and the La Crescent road is ordered repaired by September first, La Crescent capitalists will form a company there to operate an elevator, stock yards and a general store. La Crosse merchants should consider this fact when figuring out the size of their donations for the bridge and road.

That dangerous man Wiley is still at large. Can't the interests "get" him?

Mr. Lenroot seems unafraid of the Great Avoirdupois.

Of course there is nothing in superstition, but at this season of the year it is considered very unlucky for a young and eligible bachelor to meet a widow on a dark piazza.

Quips and Cranks and Wanton Wiles

Business Sagacity

Once a poor inventor blundered,
Making an experiment;
Seeing wheels revolve, he wondered
Why they did and how they went;
Having learned tht secret, gladly
He secured a patent right,
But his friends said of him sadly
That his sense had taken flight.

There was one whom the inventor
Argued with and pestered long;
Though denounced as a tormentor,
Still his faith was firm and strong
Many times he was insulted,
Often he was turned away;
But at last this thing resulted:
He was listened to, one day.

For the money that he needed
Ere his triumph could be scared,
All the rights he had were deeded
To the man whom he had bored;
So the one whose hesitation
Had been long claimed as his own
Boundless wealth and admiration
For the wisdom he had shown.

S. E. Kiser.

Take it Easy

"Don't rough it too much on your summer vacation," said Dr. Phineas L. Roycroft, the hygiene expert of Des Moines. "See that you get plenty of baths and plenty of good food. Otherwise your vacation will be apt to do you harm.

"I once thought of spending my midsummer holidays in the Tennessee mountains. So I wrote to a mountaineer whose picturesque homestead had been highly recommended to me, and in the course of my letter I asked the man if there was a bath in his house.

"In reply he said:

"'If you want a bath you had better take it before you come.'"—Washington Star.

Cured Her, First Pop

"Does your wife often grieve because she threw over a wealthy man in order to marry you?"

"She started to once, but I cured her of it the first rattle out of the box."

"I wish you would tell me how."

"I started right in to grieving with her. And I grieved harder and longer than she did."—Houston Post.

Cook—You're right, mum; you never have any luck, do you?"—Fliegende Blaetter.

A Nation Story

"Poor Carrie Nation," said a Leavenworth editor, "had many a story to back up her claim that men drink, not for the taste, but for the effect alone—that they all drink like the Chinaman who said 'Me no drinkee for drinkee; me drinkee for drunkee.'

"One of Mrs. Nation's stories was about a Nola Chucky hackman. An angler, as he rode toward the Nola Chucky canal in a hack, unscrewed the glass from the bottom of his flask, filled it and gave it to the hackman.

"The hackman tossed off the drink and returned the empty glass.

"'That's good whiskey, Wash, isn't it?' said the angler.

"'Wall, sah,' the hackman chuckled, as he wiped his lips with the sleeve of his ragged coat, 'toe tell yo' the truth, sah, Ah clean fo'get toe taste it!'"—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Boiled Down

When Samuel G. Blythe, the writer, was editing a newspaper in New York state, a green reporter one night turned in a long and thrilling story regarding the rough treatment handed out to John Smith, a visitor to the town. The story related that Mr. Smith, wearing a high silk hat, had ventured down to the docks after nightfall, and, a silk hat being unusual and provocative of antagonism in that section, Mr. Smith had emerged from among the dock hands without the hat. Nevertheless, he carried out of the melee so many wounds, cuts and bruises that he had to be sent to the hospital.

The article in its original form was too long, and not in keeping with the style of the paper. Accordingly Blythe started to rewrite it. This is the form in which it appeared in the paper the next morning:

"John Smith, wearing a high silk hat, went down to the docks last night—Emergency hospital."—Popular Magazine.

Served Him Right

The man who keeps a watchful eye on the federal government bought five postage stamps. The drug store cashier laid them down, picture side up, whereupon the customer confounded her with his knowledge of the government. He unfolded a newspaper and pointed to a heading:

"Stamps must be delivered gummy side up."

"See that?" said he, "by laying down stamps the way you did you are loading me up with germs. This window sill may be alive with germs. They will stick to the gum on the stamps, and I shall carry them home and lick them off and maybe be laid up with a spell of sickness."

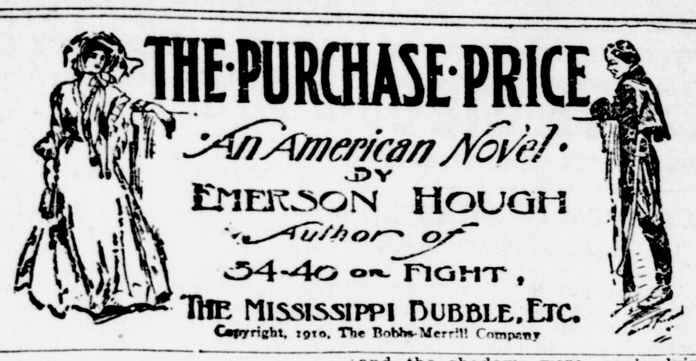

The girl gave the stamps another little push, and he shoved them back.

'What do you want me to do?' she asked.

"Take these stamps back," he said, "and lay out five more gummy side up as the government directs."

She obeyed. He folded the slip, still gum side up, and put it in his pocket. He went home and wrote letters till bedtime, and prepared to stick on the stamps. Then he said, 'Hang that girl.'"

The drug store cashier had given him one-cent stamps.

THE PURCHASE PRICE

An American Novel

BY EMERSON HOUGH

Author of 54-40 or FIGHT, THE MISSISSIPPI BUBBLE, ETC.

Copyright, 1910, The Bobbs-Merrill Company

Clayton found his way down the narrow companion way and in the darkness of the unlighted lower deck fumbled for the lock of the cabin. When he threw open the door he found the interior dimly lighted by the low window. At first he could make out nothing, but at last got a glimpse of a figure at the farther side of the little room. "Who's there!" he demanded, weapon ready.

There was no answer, but slowly, wearily, with unspeakable sadness in every gesture, there rose the figure of the girl Lily, around whose fortunes had centered all these turbulent scenes.

In the confusion which followed, no one had a clear conception of all the events which concluded this tragic encounter. Dunwody, Jamieson and Clayton cleared the men from the decks of the boat. The wounded hobbled to a place of shelter. The dead were laid out in a long and ghastly row at the edge of the willow grove. Meantime, busy hands brought dried brush and piled it up against the side of the boat as she lay against the bank, the leader in this being the Honorable William Jones, who now mysteriously reappeared, after a temporary absence which had not been noted. The faint light of a match showed in the dim dawn. There came a puff of smoke or so, a tiny crackling. A denser cloud of smoke pierced through the light flames. Soon the fire settled to its work, eating in even against the damp planking of the boat. The drier railings caught, the deck floors, the sides of the cabin. In half an hour the Helen Bell, early border transport, was a mass of flames. In a quarter-hour more, her stacks had fallen overboard and the hulk lay consumed half to the water-line.

CHAPTER XVII.

The Lady at Tallwoods.

The arrival of the four visitors at Tallwoods, and their departure so soon thereafter, were events of course not unknown to Josephine, but only conjecture could exist in her mind as to the real nature of the errand in either case. Jeanne, her maid, speculated as to this openly.

"That docteur also, he is now gone,' said she, ruefully. "But yet, behold the better opportunity for us to escape, Madame. Ah, were it not for the injury of madame, I should say, let us at once set out — we could follow the road."

"But they will return!" exclaimed her mistress. "We can not tell how long they will be gone. And, Jeanne, I suffer."

"Ah, my poor angel! You suffer! It is criminal! We dare not start. But believe me, Madame, even so it is not all misfortune. Suppose we remain; suppose Monsieur Dunwody comes back. You suffer. He has pity. Pity is then your friend. In that itself are you most strong. Content yourself to be weak and helpless for a time. Not even that brute, that assassin, that criminal, dare offend you now, Madame. But —of course he is impossible for one like madame; yet I have delight to hear even a brute, an assassin, make such love! Ah, mon Dieu!"

Jeanne pursed a lip impartially. "Mon Dieu! And he was repressed, by reason of my presence. He was restrained, none the less, by this raiment here of another, so mysterious. Ah, if he—"

"Tais-toi donc, Jeanne!" exclaimed her mistress. "No more! We shall stay until tomorrow, at least."

And so the day passed. The sleepy life of the old plantation went on about them in silence. As a wild animal pursued, oppressed, but for the time left alone in some hiding-place, gains greater courage with each moment of freedom from pursuit, so Josephine St. Auban gained a groundless hope with the passing of the hours. Even the long night at length rolled away. Jeanne slept in her mistress' room. Nothing occurred to disturb their rest.

It was evening of the second day, and the shadows were again lying across the valley, when there came slowly filing into view along the turn of the road the band of returning riders. At their head was the tall form of Dunwody, the others following, straggling, drooping in their saddles as though from long hours of exertion. The cavalcade slowly approached and drew up at the front door. As they dismounted the faces of all showed haggard, worn and stern.

"There has been combat, Madame!" whispered Jeanne. "See, he has been hurt. Look—those others!"

Dunwody got out of his saddle with difficulty. He limped as he stood now. slender man near him got down unaided, a tall German-looking man followed suit. The group broke apart and showed a girl, riding, bound. Some one undid the bonds and helped her to the ground.

All of these things were apparent from the vantage ground of the upper story window, but Josephine, unwilling to play at spying, saw none of it. At last, however, an exclamation from Jeanne caused her to hasten to the window. "Mon Dieu, Madame, look—it is that officer—it is Monsieur le Capitaine Carlisle! Look! why then—"

With no more than a glance her mistress turned, flung open the door of the room, hurried down the stair, passed out of the hall and so fronted these newcomers at the gallery. They stood silent as they saw her. She herself was first to speak.

"What are you doing with that woman?" she demanded.

They all stood in silence, looking at her, at this apparition of a woman—a young and beautiful woman—here at Tallwoods, where none had known of any woman these many years. Clayton himself made no comment. The Honorable William Jones smiled broadly. Dunwody removed his hat. "Gentlemen," said he, "this is the Countess St. Auban, who has come to see these parts of our country. Madam," he added, "this is Judge Clayton. He was on the Mount Vernon with us. Lieutenant Kammerer, I think, is the name of this gentleman who came down here to teach us a few things. There has been some fighting. Mr. Yates—Mr. Jones. And this gentleman"—he stepped back so that Carlisle might come into view—"I think you already know."

"I knowed it! I knowed it!" broke in the Honorable William Jones. "I seen all along there was a woman in this house. I said—"

Josephine turned to him a swift glance. "There is a lady in this house."

"Yes," broke out Carlisle, "and all of you remember it. Don't I know! Madam, what are you doing here?"

"Kind words from my former jailer? So!" She rewarded him none too much for his quick sympathy. Then, relenting: "But at least you were better than this new jailer. Are you too, a prisoner? I can't understand all this."

"But you're hurt, Madam," began Carlisle. "How is that? Have you also been attacked by these ruffians? I did not dream Dunwody was actually so much a ruffian."

GOOD WORK

Done Daily in La Crosse. Many Citizens Tell of It.

Nearly every reader has heard of Doan's Kidney Pills. Their good work in La Crosse still continues, and our citizens are constantly adding endorsment by public testimony. No better proof of merit can be had than the experience of friends and neighbors. Read this case:

Mrs. D. Bailey, 1116 S. Sixth St., La Crosse, Wis., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have proven very effective in my home. I publicly endorsed them in 1907 and at this time I take pleasure in doing so again. A member of my family suffered from kidney and bladder complaint and this trouble had a bad effect on his health. The prompt and beneficial effect of Doan's Kidney Pills, procured from Erhart's Drug Store, was gratifying. This remedy brought lasting relief and proved to be a specific for kidney complaint."

After many years of study in the active practice of medicine, Dr. R. V. Pierce found that when the stomach was out of order, the blood impure and there were symptoms of general breakdown, a tonic made of the glyceric extract of certain roots was the best corrective. This he called

COMPLETE NEWS OF THE NORTH SIDE

MARVIN TO ASK SCALP OF WEBBER

North Side Alderman to Demand Police Chief's Resignation at Next Council

FAILS TO ENFORCE THE LAW

This Is Allegation Made Against Department Head by Anti- Saloonist Today

Asserting that Chief of Police John B. Webber has neglected his duty, Alderman George B. Marvin, Jr., of the Ninth ward, this morning announced his intention of taking steps at the next council meeting to have the chief of police removed, and a more efficient man put in his place.

Mr. Marvin declared that he would introduce a resolution at the next meeting demanding that the council ask the fire and police commission to appoint another chief. The resolution will state the reasons for the proposed change.

Mr. Marvin declares that the recent action of the chief of police, in refusing to enforce the wineroom law is the direct cause of his agitation for his release. He declares that the chief has refused take any steps to enforce the law, and that he is therefore neglecting the performance of his duty.

Marvin also declares that the chief has pursued a policy of neglect throughout in his toleration of the red light district. Mr. Marvin also declares that it is the duty of the police to see that the keepers of resorts take out city licenses as well as government licenses for the sale of liquor, and this he declares, the chief has neglected, and is therefore unfit for the office.

Not Personal Matter

Mr. Marvin denies absolutely that his move to install a new chief is inspired by any personal motive.

"On the contrary," he said this morning, "I am a warm friend of Chief Webber, and I think that as a man he is very likeable. But he is a poor chief of police, and he has not done his duty. We must have a chief in La Crosse that will uphold and enforce the law, and I mean to see that this is done."

Alderman Marvin also declared that at the next meeting of the council he would revive his anti-mashing ordinance, which was lost in committee at its first introduction. This law provided that "any person who shall 'ogle,' insult, follow, pursue, lay hands on, and otherwise molest any person of the opposite sex on the streets of La Crosse shall be liable to a fine of from $10 to $100, or imprisonment of from fifteen to ninety days."

FALLING CROWBAR FRACTURES SKULL

Struck in the head by a falling crowbar, Edwin Hauck, aged 42 years, 418 Avon street, yesterday afternoon suffered a fracture of the skull, and today lies in a serious condition at his home.

Hauck is a plumber, and is employed on the laying of the new water extension at Monitor street. He was down in a well yesterday, laying pipe, when without warning a crowbar slipped from the top and fell, a distance of 22 feet, striking him on the top of the head. He was unconscious for an hour after the accident.

Dr. G. W. Lueck was summoned immediately, and the injured man was taken to his home. Hauck moved to La Crosse about four months ago from North Dakota. He is married and has one daughter.

PITIFUL FIGURE IS FOUND IN BOX CAR

Conductors Cecil Nichols and Charles Upton, of the Milwaukee road, brought into the North side station a pitiful looking object which they had discovered in a box car at River Junction. It was a man, unable to talk English, who declared that he had just been released from a hospital in North Dakota, and was on his way to Milwaukee, where he had friends. He was without money, and both legs were paralyzed. A collection was taken for him among the railroaders, and he was sent to Milwaukee last night on No. 18.

MYSTERY IN BURNING OF G. E. JENKS' BARN

A mysterious fire, the origin of which has not been discovered, yesterday attacked and destroyed a barn belonging to Gilbert E. Jenks, R. F. D. No. 3, on French Island. The barn was a total loss, and there was but little insurance on it. Several hundred dollars' worth of tools were destroyed in the flames. The barn is not near any railroad, and there were no fires in the vicinity, a circumstance which puts Mr. Jenks at a loss to explain the cause of the fire. The theory of spontaneous combustion is scouted, owing to the fact that there was no hay or anything of similar nature in the barn to start a blaze.

COMPENSATION BENEFICENT LAW

State's Attorney Files Brief Declaring New Workmen's Act Is Constitutional

MADISON, Wis., Aug. 19.—Deputy Attorney General Russell Jackson on Friday filed in the supreme court the brief of the state against the application of the Filer & Stowell company, Thomas J. Neacy, and Walter Read, all of Milwaukee, for leave to bring suit against the Wisconsin industrial commission, the secretary of state, state treasurer and officers of the city of Milwaukee to enjoin them from enforcing the new workmen's compensation law on the ground that it is unconstitutional.

Attorneys Carpenter and Poss, representing the petitioners, filed their brief some days ago, and the state's brief is a reply to that document. The state contends in brief that the law is constitutional.

"The act is a beneficent one," declares Attorney Jackson in concluding his argument. "Two legislatures have taken infinite pains that it might meet the crying demand that led to its passage. Time alone will prove its worth, disclose its imperfections and reveal its defects. It was conceived in the interests of humanity. If it realizes but a part of what its sponsors vouchsafe it will not have been enacted in vain. Every consideration of public policy would seem to dictate that it at least be given a fair trial before it be condemned."

London Through the Ages.

It is proposed to establish in the British metropolis a museum to be devoted to the exhibition of relics pertaining to the history of London from the earliest times of its occupation by man. These times run back much farther than most readers are aware. The city that Julius Caesar found occupied a site which had been inhabited for unnumbered thousands of years. It is now known that during Paleolithic and Neolithic times—the two great divisions of the stone age—man dwelt on the site of London, but it first became the settlement of a community at the opening of the historic age, when it was a stronghold of the Celts. The remains of its Roman period are the finest of the kind in Great Britain. The Anglo-Saxon and Danish periods are also finely represented, and even later periods, such as the Tudor, furnish relics that have been buried by that strange process of superincumbent growth which makes the soil under a great city resemble the fossiliferous strata of geology.—Youth's Companion.

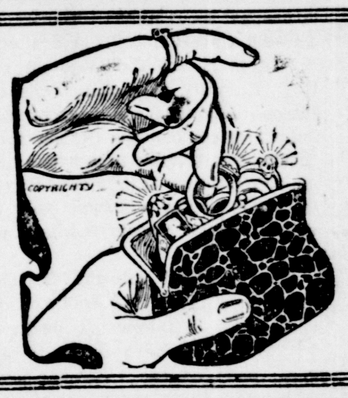

Elephants Killed by Rats.

In 1868 three of Hagenbeck's elephants, just brought from Africa, were attacked by rats,, which ate through the wooden floor on which they (the elephants) stood and gnawed the animals' feet. All three died, no doubt from fright rather than from pain. Mr. Robinson, in quoting this story as "the most dreadful" apparently in his collection of anecdotes of elephants attacked by puny enemies, seems to be unaware that the same thing has happened in England. The first chronicled instance, we believe, belongs not to the Regent's Park Zoological Gardens, but to Clifton, and has been duly recorded by Frank Buckland. But there has been trouble in the London Gardens before now with rats attacking the large animals; the old hippopotamus Guy Fawkes was one of the sufferers.

Angel of the Battlefield.

Mrs. Maria Magee of Tipperary, who is, according to records, the second oldest Crimean veteran of her sex in the world, was one of the veterans present at the coronation dinner given in Belfast. She has been in the firing line in many a hard fought and historic battle, and has soothed the last moments of scores of British soldiers dying in foreign lands. She traveled with her husband through India, Egypt, New Zealand and the Mediterranean stations. Asked what her feelings were when in the thick of the fighting with the bullets whistling around, Mrs. Magee said: "I didn't think of it. I was looking after the poor wounded fellows. Everyone was shouting for his mother, or his wife, or his children. That's what the dying soldier always cries for, and he loves to send them a last message."

LEECH HAS BEEN DEPOSED

Few Are Sold Now, Though Not Long Ago the Traffic In Them Was Large.

Another of our cherished ideas will soon be no more. The leech has been deposed from its sovereignty and its "passing" forms the subject of an article in the "Mois litteraire et pittoresque" by M. Jacques Boyer, who tells us that prior to 1870 a dozen wholesale houses in Paris were engaged in the traffic of this "gibier pharmaceutique," and that they sold between 300,000 and 400,000 a month at the rate of 250 francs or $50 per 1,000. One house alone survives and the number sent out is 130,000 and the price has fallen to about 70 francs per 1,000.

What we may term the leech farmer for want of a better name we are told as l'hiridiculteur, who formerly exercised his calling in the neighborhood or Bordeaux in an artificial marsh. He had several infirm horses and these poor creatures were induced by trickery to take a bath in the marsh with the result that the growing leeches got a feed at the expense of the life blood of the venerable horses, of which they had no superfluity.

In Croatia, Dalmatia and Turkey they fish for leeches, which are taken in baskets like oysters. When these arrived in France they were placed in dark cellars without nourishment the better to fit them for their work on the invalid.

M. Boyer tells an amusing story of a lot of leeches purchased for the navy. They were duly registered as each was sent out. Five it seemed died a natural death, a fact which will be preserved in the archives of the ministry of marine.

IT WAS THE PROPERTY LIME

Bartender Admits It Was Filled With Lemon Juice for Each Gin Rickey.

The consumer of the gin rickey, who knew all there was to know about gin rickeys, detected something wrong about the taste of the one he was drinking. Study of the matter told him that, instead of lime juice, it was flavored with the juice of the lemon.

But no! There, in the glass, uncompromisingly green and genuine, was half a lime.

Still, there was something wrong. After taking two or three additional sips he decided to speak about it to the bartender.

"Isn't there lemon juice in this rickey?" he inquired.

The bartender realized that before him was one who could not be bluffed.

"There is," he confessed, shamefacedly. "You see, we ran out of limes long ago, so each time a rickey's ordered we take that half lime in your glass, squeeze it full of lemon juice to freshen it up, and serve the drink."

It is only occasionally that a man hitches his wagon to a star nowadays; the majority of them seem to be perfectly satisfied with a chorus girl.

WOULD SAVE SWISS SCENERY

League Asks the Government Not to Grant Concessions for Any More Alpine Railways.

The Swiss Scenery Preservation society has presented to the government a memorial urgently calling upon it not to grant concessions for any more Alpine railways. Of late a strong feeling has arisen among the more thoughtful and intelligent Swiss that their country has already been sufficiently exploited. Many beautiful passes and minor summits have been disfigured by overhead electric railways or besmirched by smoking engines, yet concessions for fresh mountain railways do not cease to be demanded. Quite recently as many as fourteen were before the government at one time.

What has now aroused the Swiss Scenery Preservation society to energetic protest is the demand recently addressed to the government for a concession for a cogwheel line from Glion, via Brochet, to Sonchaux, with a branch line from Brochet to Gaux. This proposal they combat on the ground that another cogwheel line already exists in the neighborhood (Glion-Rochers de Naye); that the new line would hopelessly disfigure a beautiful piece of Alpine scenery, and that it is not justified by the circumstances of the surrounding district.

Coops In Fields for Babies.

That necessity is the mother of invention is shown by the hundreds of little buildings resembling chicken coops which are scattered over the fields of Weld county to provide daytime homes for the babies of the Russians who work in the fields.

The Russian mothers are obliged to take their babies to the fields and have built these little structures of wood, covering them with canvas. At noon and once in the morning and in the afternoon the mothers visit their children, leaving them alone for the remainder of the day.

The youngsters are apparently contented and remain in their little coops without a cry, gazing through the slats at the passersby.—Greeley Cor. Denver Republican.

Amusing Typographical Errors.

A double-barreled typographical error is related in Henry S. Harrison's novel, "Queed." A southern paper referred to a spirited old major as "that immortal veterinary" and when it sought the next day to retrieve itself, at the major's insistent demand, the hateful words came out "immoral veteran." An equally amusing error was made on the occasion of a charity ball held in Buffalo. The society editor in describing the gowns of the women guests characterized one as having "iridescent trimmings." To her horror and surprise when she saw the article in print the dress was adorned with "indecent trimmings."

JUST AS GOOD AS VACATION

Mr. Gwillkinton Says He Reads the Booklets and in the End Is Satisfied.

"Where am I going this summer? Well, h'm, I haven't quite made up my mind yet," said Mr. Gwillkinton. "I'm still reading the booklets.

"Every year I get the booklets, a lot of 'em, and say, they're wonderful. Beautifully printed and delightfully illustrated. Why, it's as good as a vacation to read some of them, and I go over all of them and enjoy every one of them and try to make up my mind which place I'd like best.

"Of course in a general way one knows what sort of place one likes. Some like the seashore, some the mountains. For myself I like the seashore better, but I think it's wise to alternate to give oneself the benefit of the various sorts of air, and so sometimes I go one place and sometimes another—when I go.

"I don't always go. There are certain circumstances not always completely within my control that sometimes keep me in the city all through the summer, and at the present moment this looks to me like one of those summers.

"But whether I go or not I always read the booklets, always, as I am doing with profound delight now; about the shady nooks and the purling brooks and the grand old ocean and they are all a joy to me, even when, as this year, it looks as if I'd have to take it out of the booklets.

"Still I am not disturbed by that. How do I know what sort of a room they'd give me in the place where I want to go? They might put me over the kitchen or give me a cot in the barn. The table might not be just what I had expected and there might be mosquitoes there. I don't know just what I'd find; there might be various drawbacks, while sitting here at home I can revel in the booklets' perfect charm with absolutely no drawbacks whatever. You can see that, can't you?"

Big Game.

Larry Covington of the Philadelphia Evening Times, was in the city, says the New York Morning Telegraph. While in a Broadway cafe Mr. Covington was telling of a trip he once took to Savannah, Ga., with some friends.

"We decided to go out to Mrs. Bannon's fish lodge for supper," he said. "We chartered an old sea-going hack driven by a negro. The driver was a knowing old fellow and pointed out to us all the places of interest along the route.

"As we were nearing Mrs. Bannon's place, which is six miles from Savannah, a squirrel appeared in the road.

"'George,' I said, after we had all noticed the squirrel, 'do you have any big game around here?'

"'Yas, indeed, sah,' replied the negro. 'We has baseball.'"

Preaches Annual Sermon.

What is known locally as "The Vegetable Sermon" was given recently by the bishop of Stepney, England, in Shoreditch church. The origin of the sermon goes back almost two centuries. Thomas Fairchild, a Hoxton gardener, who died in 1729, bequeathed a sum of money for the purpose of paying a preacher to deliver a lecture in the church "in the afternoon of Tuesday in every Whitsun week." The lecture must be one of the two following subjects: "The Wonderful Works of God in Creation" or "The Certainty of the Resurrection of the Dead, as Evidenced by Changes in the Animal and Vegetable Parts of the Creation." The lecture was first preached in 1730 and has been delivered annually ever since.

No. 79—Pete Browning

A Proof that the Erratic Sometimes Pays

They used to say that Pete Browning was crazy, and maybe he was. They've frequently said the same thing about Bugs Raymond, and The Germs, listening with that old foolish grin on his candid countenance, has gone in and retired a side one, two, three, just like that. Similar remarks of Rube Waddell—and kindred happenings. That was the way it was with our old friend, Pete. They called him Pete because his name was Louis R. Brilliant, yes?

Anyway, if a hitting specialty of the sort Pete Browning practiced comes with being bug, cellular malady is hereby recommended to a number of gents now performing in various leagues, whose names, however, it is not necessary to name at this writing. Suffice it to say that the genius who delivered himself of the once popular song "It's Great to Be Crazy" had a strangle-grab on the tag end of A Great White Truth.

Browning served his time with the Louisville team in the days of long gone by. He left-fielded for that sturdy American Association assortment, and he got his name in the papers frequent and emphatic. They dwelt humorously on his peculiarities. They laughed immoderately when he pranced up to the plate and pulled the Marcelline maneuvers. They nudged each other in the grand seats when old Pete talked to himself, and counted the fingers of his hands to see how many made five. They found in Master B a shining butt for the merry jest. As the average spectator was about to explode with the mirth of the thing biff goes the Browning bat, and, away out yonder in the cornfield somebody is having a weary chase for a lost ball, and here comes old Pete romping across the sward, counting the bases to see how many make four.

Just to show that he was no casual, now-and-then, once-in-a-while scratch performer, Pete led the league a couple of times, and never batted for less than .300 on the season, when he could help it. And usually he could help batting under three hundred. You might peep into his record in the 80's, if you were so disposed, and what you'd find would be marks such as .382, .336, .341, .367, .339, .471, .313. Oh, pretty fair for a bug.

The Players' League weaned the good boy away from old associations and when Pete joined out with the Cleveland Brotherhood team, he took along his walking stick and made another notch of the sort his folks are proud to remember him by. That is to say, he led the notable organization the year of its existence, batting out a 391 percentage and talking merrily to himself the while.

Some people used also to urge against Browning that besides being eccentris,he had an eye for the wineskin, and perhaps this is not to be denied. In this accomplishment, old Pietro was not alone. George Washington, Napoleon Bonaparte, John A. Logan, U. S. Grant, John G. Carlisle, King Solomon, and a lot of others of class shared this human quality with Master Browning, and they are each and every one of them listed in the .300 or better category.

More Blonde Brides.

Blondes in Philadelphia have just three times as many chances to be married as have brunettes, according to the records kept at the license bureau. During the last year the clerks have kept careful tab on the complexion of women applicants for licenses and Robert E. Furgeson, chief clerk, announced that in 16,000 of 17,000 cases where marriage licenses had been issued, the brides had light hair. The clerks in the divorce courts here now have decided to keep a similar record to ascertain whether blondes or brunettes are the more peaceable.

MUST BUILD NEW VIADUCT

Commission Sends Letter to City Car Company and Railroad Concerning New Bridge

Following the inspection last Thursday of the Rose street viaduct by Leslie Flanders Van Hagan of the state railroad commission and city officials a letter was today received by the street railway company, the C. M. & St P. railway company, and the city, which declares that the commission is of the opinion that the viaduct has about reached the end of its usefulness, and that a new one must be built in the near future if the street car tracks are to be run over it. The letter advises that the street car company run their tracks over the bridge, claiming that Rose street is "the natural solution of the problem of providing a safe route for all street car traffic across the railway tracks to the north side." The commission advises this plan to eliminate the dangerous Mill street death trap.

The letter in question was sent to each of the three parties interested, in order to get their views on the matter. It is probable that a meeting will be held to decide the proper division of the costs of erecting a new bridge over the tracks.

Peter Valier, superintendent of the street railway system in La Crosse, today declared that the street railway company had not yet decided to move their tracks onto Rose street, in spite of the fact that the commission advised it. He declared that it would mean a great expenditure, and loss of a great deal of money already expended, which the company was disinclined to lose. Mr. Valier, however, admitted that it was probably the best solution of the problem of safe transportation to the north side, and delared that were it not for the expense involved in making the change, he would be strongly in favor of the move.

"Two years ago," declared Mr. Valier in discussing the subject, "the street railway company paved three blocks on Mill street with brick. This we paid for entirely ourselves, and if we are forced by the commission to make a change, the money spent in this way will be a total loss, for we will be unable to collect anything on the improvement from the city. Then, if after we have moved aur tracks the city should decide to pave Rose street with brik, we would again be forced to pay out money. It is a big question, and while in a general way I think it would be a good thing, I can not say that the company will undertake it, because it involves too much expense."

WRITER'S HUSBAND IS IGNORANT OF DEATH

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—A telegram addressed to Mrs. James Sydney McCullough, better known as Myrtle Reed, the celebrated authoress, was received at the McCullough home early today, signed by her missing husband, who wired:

"Will arrive at 5:25 in the morning. Best love from Binkie."

The telegram was filed at Milwaukee.

Despite the fact that McCullough was to have arrived early today, and apparently was ignorant of his wife's suicide, he had not appeared up to noon.

Physicians who had been attending Mrs. McCullough declared she suffered from extreme nervousness and that the letter she left in which she blamed her husband for her suicide, probably was the result of a disordered brain.

Mrs. McCullough left an estate of $50,000, made entirely by her writings. Most of her property goes to charity under the terms of her will.

WON'T CLOSE LOCAL OFFICE IMMEDIATELY

Judge L. Kleeber, superintendent of the local free employment bureau, received notification of his reappointment for the term of three months from the industrial commission of Wisconsin this morning.

In the notification of reappointment the commission stated that they have been unable to reach any conclusion on the matter of discontinuing one of the five state employment bureaus and that each of the five offices will be continued during the next three months.

It is the general opinion that all five offices will be retained, but that arrangements will be made to have one of the offices come under the head of some other department, as the commission is allowed but four offices according to a recent act of the legislature.

REFORM WAVE SET BACK.

IOLA, Kas., Aug. 19.—Iola's reform wave which B. G. D. Smeltzer tried to help by sentencing Mrs. Ella Reese to the chain gang is meeting with further setbacks and has not yet caused any convictions. City officials defied the court and saved Mrs. Reese from the chain gang. The woman was then held to testify against Rev. Hood Line, a Holiness preacher, charged with questionable conduct, but Line forfeited his bond by failing to appear in court yesterday.

TORNADO SWEEPS TOWN

NEBRON, Neb., Aug. 19.—A tornado which struck here today wrecked the $60,000 high school building and partially destroyed the Catholic church, the church school and court house. No casualties were reported although the path of the tornado was directly across the residence section of the city.

SUCCESS MEETS FUND CAMPAIGN

Funds Are Coming In, Report Members of Committee, and a Free Bridge Is Assured

"We'll surely win out," said C. B. Gesell, when asked today as to how the fund for the building of the road to La Crescent was coming, while N. M. Scott, who is on the same committee with Mr. Gesell, is also optimistic over the chances of success and he asserts that the stipulated amount will be on hand in time to appear before the council at its meeting next Friday evening.

Messrs. Scott and Gesell form an energetic committee for they were hard at work yesterday and succeeded in getting twenty new subscriptions ranging in size from $5 to $25. It appears that business men in general are greatly in favor of the proposed plan for all are donating.

"We surely expect to succeed," said Mr. Gesell, "but every committee must get out and hustle. Mr. Scott and I have been working hard and we had a hard list but still we succeeded in raising a good sized sum of money. Small merchants as well as the large ones are all interested in the movement, and each one gives what he can afford, although we do not accept anything less than $2."

According to this committee there is no doubt in the least but that the necessary $10,000 will be raised in the city for donations from new sources are coming in constantly. Yesterday several large subscriptions came in and it is likely that more will follow, so at the present time there remains approximately $1,500 still to be raised. This, it is declared, can be secured easily before the end of next week, and then the free bridge and an excellent road which will attract farmers from all over the rich territory in Minnesota near us will come to this town, for there will be inducements for them here.

There seems to be no doubt at all but that the Minnesota people will raise the $10,000 required of them for over half of it has already been subscribed and when they get their apportionment from the state they will have more than enough to meet all the demands. This road can hardly be built this year at any rate as cold weather will set in comparatively soon, so the construction will not be started until 1912.

ARMY WILL ADOPT BIPLANE AS SCOUTS

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—The biplane, a typically American institution, probably will be adopted by the army for scouting purposes over the monoplane, which has been given preference abroad. It was learned today that Major Samuel Reber, of the signal corps, the government's aviation expert who has attended all the aviation meetings as the government's representative, will submit an early report advocating the type of flyer over the faster monoplane. The government officials, it is said, believe the biplane is the safer. Several machines immediately will be added to the army's equipment. It is understod the aviation detachment will be established at Omaha to study the flying game from all angles.

The first actual use of heavier-than-air machines by the army will, it is said, be in the forthcoming maneuvers, when signal corps men will operate the biplanes for "locating the enemy."

SOCIALIST REPORTER MAY BE KIDNAPED

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 19.—Baffled in their search for George Shoaf, of the staff of the Appeal to Reason, a socialist newspaper, the local police today sent descriptions to all the cities on the Pacific coast. Shoef vanished Sunday night and the socialists here declare he has been murdered. Monday Shoaf's battered hat and a short piece of garden hose, weighted with lead, were found in the hall of the house where Shoaf stayed. Shoaf for weeks had been working on the McNamara case and his friends assert that he had unearthed much evidence favorable to the accused union men. They think he has been kidnaped and is being held prisoner until after the McNamara trial.

"Life is not a grind to a man who has a grist worth grinding."

Every day we tell you about this store. What a grind it would be to us and how uninteresting to you if always it were in the same rut—and the store that's not constantly extending its horizon gets into a rut.

We've had many people tell us this is the nicest jewelry store in the city. If it is not, we will make it so. And in our business as jewelers we have never attempted a single project without measuring it with the full ability to carry it out.

HANDS WOULD BURN LIKE FIRE

Could Lay Pin in Cracks. Four Long Years of Eczema. Only Relief in Scratching. Used One Set of Cuticura Remedies. Hands Entirely Well.

"I can truthfully say Cuticura Remedies have cured me of four long years of eczema. About four years ago I noticed some little pimples coming on my little finger, and not giving it any attention, it soon became worse and spread all over my hands. If I would have them in water for a long time, they would burn like fire and large cracks would come. I could lay a pin in them. After using all the salves I could think of, I went to three different doctors, but all did me no good. The only relief I got was scratching.

"So after hearing so much about the wonderful Cuticura Remedies, I purchased one complete set, and after using them three days my hands were much better. To-day my hands are entirely well, one set being all I used." (Signed) Miss Etta Narber, R. F. D. 2, Spring Lake, Mich., Sept. 26, 1910.

No stronger evidence than this could be given of the success and economy of the Cuticura Remedies in the treatment of torturing, disfiguring humors of the skin. A single hot bath with Cuticura Soap and a gentle anointing with Cuticura Ointment are often sufficient to afford immediate relief in the most distressing cases and permit rest and sleep when all else fails. Cuticura Soap and Ointment are equally effective in preserving, purifying and beautifying the skin, scalp, hair and hands.

Although Cuticura Soap (25c.) and Cuticura Ointment (50c.) are sold throughout the world, a liberal sample of each, with 32-p. book on the skin and scalp, will be mailed free on application to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Dept. 2B, Boston, Mass.

PESTILENCE AND STARVATION IS STRIKE SCOURGE

far northern roads general demoralization is reported.

The most remarkable feature of the strike is the good order and lack of violence. Labor leaders are placing stress upon this. Only two attempts to interfere with trains have been reported from the province thus far. The government, in an announcement that it has not given up attempts to bring about a settlement, also notes the absence of disorders.

Mail Service Demoralized

The demoralization of the mail service caused the postoffice department today seriously to consider numerous offers of aeroplanists to deliver the mails. The street railway and tube situation in London was somewhat improved today on account of the employment of several thousand strike breakers.

The London Times today said: "It is a mistake to minimize the gravity of the situation which is far more serious than anything that has previously occurred in the history of industrial troubles in this country."

While the strikers are jubilant over their success so far conditions in the slums in every large city are most serious. Danger of starvation threatens thousands. Refuse has not been removed and there is donger of pestilence. An Irish physician working in Liverpool slums is quoted as follows:

Children are Dying

"First, it is the children. They are dying everywhere. It will not rest with them unless the refuse is removed. Should any infectious disease break out among the people here, it would carry them off like flies. The atmosphere of the city is awful."

Bread and provisions are becoming almost as dificult to get here as in Liverpool and suffering is intense among the poor.

The average wage of the 450,000 men employed by the railroads is $6 a week. They demand increases averaging fifty cents a week. They also ask for changes in working conditions. The main issue and the direct cause of the strike, however, is the direct recognition of the unions.

The government, it is said, will institute a service of military trains for the transportation of food supplies to the big cities from various ports. In this manner it is expected to avert famine.

Reports from Birmingham, Manchester, Sheffield and Leeds say that many mills and collieries have shut down. It is feared that by tonight 75,000 miners will have been thrown out of work. A warship has today taken food to the Isle of Man.

Suffer in Silence

LIVERPOOL, Aug. 19.—With the streets filled with soldiers and the water front surrounded by marines today the mob spirit was quelled in Liverpool but conditions grow worse hourly. The soldiers have been unable to furnish the city with even a partial food supply. Hunger is driving thousands to desperation. Men and women who in their extremity plundered bread shops are now suffering in silence. T. P. O'Connor and Col. Gerard Kyffin-Tyler, members of parliament, sent here by Home Secretary Churchill to investigate, today tried to make an agreement with the strikers and ship owners whereby food could be brought into the city to relieve suffering. They were assured that the government would take any steps they recommended and they have announced their intention to see that the embargo is temporarily lifted.

The danger of pestilence is growing hourly.

All power is cut off in this city, saloons and restaurants are closed; famine conditions prevail this evening and the death rate is already alarmingly high. The stench of uncollected garbage is horrible and unless something is done to remove the tons of refuse now exposed to the sun, disease, which can hardly be contemplated, will be added to the sorrows of the strike.

Mobs led by hungry women today attacked the cold storage warehouses hoping to get food to sustain life. They failed because the supply was already exhausted. While the police and soldiers were as considerate as possible in dealing with the mobs, they had to resort to their batons to disperse the rioters.

All the coal owned by the city was today turned over to local bakers to enable them to bake up their available supply of bread. This will be disposed of by the city authorities The city is also opening milk depots to supply babies and children who are dying by the dozen because of the lack of food.

T. P. O'Connor, who arrived here today, is trying to arrange a compromise to settle the strike. He is also using his influence to have the strikers assist in cleaning the streets to avoid pestilence.

Troops Fire on Mob

ABERAYRON, Wales, Aug. 19.—A desperate fight followed an attempt of strikers today to tear up the railway lines here. The police and military repeatedly charged the crowd and were finally compelled to fire before the rioters dispersed. The casualties are heavy and several of the injured may die.

Rioters are Shot

LLANELLY, Wales, Aug. 19.—Serious rioting took place here today, the military and police being compelled to fire a volley into the midst of a mob that attack them. Two persons were killed and one wounded.

SILVERWARE THAT LASTS

Yesterday one of our old customers called and purchased a dozen of our silver plated knives and forks and made this remark: "I am still using a set of knives and forks purchased from you eighteen years ago and they are still good." This is a pleasing testimonial and pleasant for us to hear. We are still selling the same grade of triple silver plated knives and forks, warranted for 20 years' service: Rogers, R. Wallace & Sons, and Meriden Cutlery Co. We strongly recommend the Wallace and Meriden goods as the finest finished and most lasting. Our price is only $3.50 for six knives and six forks. On mail orders we will allow 25 cents for express charges.

NEW STAR RISES AMONG AVIATORS

Brindley Says It Was Easy to Drive Aeroplane 11,726 Feet From Earth

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—A new star has risen in the ranks of earthly "astral bodies" and today Oscar A. Brindley, a 26-year-old mechanical engineer is being hailed as one of the world's foremost aviators because of his feat late yesterday in directing his Wright biplane 11,726 feet into the air, 576 feet higher than a heavier-than-air machine has ever before ascended.

"I wasn't dressed for cold work," said Brindley today, "or I could have gone higher. I nearly froze up there, and had to come down. I didn't know how easy it was; the next time, when I dress properly, I'm going to pay a visit to the stars. Seriously, I think my machine would have gone a mile higher had I not gotten so cold, I was afraid I would lose control. I shall break my own record shortly."

Brindley has been flying only since May, having attended alone after two hours and a half instruction in Dayton, Ohio. The former world's altitude record was held by Commandant Felix of the French army corps, who two weeks ago ascended 11,150 feet at Etamps France. For breaking this record Brindley receives $1,000 in cash, a $2,500 silver trophy, and, unless the record is broken again at this meet, will receive an additional $2,000 prize.

Tom Sopwith, "the king's own aviator," who won the Baron de Forest rize for the longest flight, from England into France, is the largest prize winner at the present meet, though some of the duration flyers, in dividing the duration awards, may pass him before the meet closes.

SAYS REVOLUTION IS DUE IN ENGLAND

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 19.—Great Britain is on the verge of a social and economical revolution, according to Rev. W. B. Forbush, pastor of the Northwood Ward Congregational church, and widely known as a student of social conditions, here today.

He has just returned from a study of the conditions in England which have culminated in the spectacular uprising of capital against labor, and believes that conditions there now are much the same as those in France immediately preceding the bloody French revolution.

Class caste, monopoly of the land by the nobility, and lack of educational opportunities for the poor are the three great causes of unrest, he asserts. The peerage control the land, he says, and the product is spent in luxurious living rather than devoted to more production. The line between the classes is well marked, he holds, and tends to retard the development from lower levels. Trade and manual training is lacking in the schools, says the minister.

LA LOLLETTE HITS SUPREME COURT

Introduces and Discusses Sweeping Series of Amendments to Anti-Trust Law

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—Asserting the supreme court of the United States "yielded to the interests" and wrote into the Sherman law what congress never placed there, Senator La Follette, (Rep., Wis.) this afternoon introduced and discussed in the senate a sweeping series of amendments to the anti-trust law, designed to make any restraint of trade unreasonable.

La Follette's measure places the burden of proof in suits under the anti-trust law on the party contending that a restraint is reasonable. It provides that restraint by a corporation shall be charged against any member thereof and makes stringent prohibition against any restrictions upon the sale or leasing of any article, to prevent discriminations.

Campaign of Education

"There is no subject so important, or so completely underlying the ills from which the people are suffering, as this question of the anti-trust law," La Follette asserted. He said he was beginning a campaign of education. The matter, he maintained, was of the utmost importance to the American people. The great problem, he said, was whether representative government could be maintained and justice obtained. The problem would have been settled years ago, he declared, if attorney general had pressed suits against the trusts. He held the senate partially responsible because of "sympathy for the great interests."

A combination of democrats and insurgent republicans, led by Senator La Follette (Rep., Wis.) in the senate enabled the house democrats to put their tariff bills through that body in some semblance of their original shape. But the combination exploded at the last minute and only the complaisance of the stand-pat republicans allowed passage of the cotton bill to which were attached revisions of the iron and steel schedule, the cotton machinery schedule and an amendment providing for free coal from Canada.

The declaration of the president that he will sign no tariff bills until the tariff board reports on them put a damper on the tariff revision ardor of the democrats.

A bill providing for the direct election of senators by the people will be left in conference between the two houses when congress adjourns. The house passed it and the senate amended it.

AUTOED POSSES ARE HUNTING SLAYERS

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Iowa, Aug. 19.—Five hundred farmers in 150 automobiles, who for the last twenty-four hours have been chasing the three men who murdered Marshal Butcher at Missouri Valley, Iowa, are now thought to have the desperadoes surrounded in a heavy wood several miles above the city. The "close in" will not be made until morning.

The three men are supposed to be convict Smith of the Iowa state prison, his brother and a friend. The guard over Smith was killed when the escape was made.

Late yesterday afternoon the three men shot and killed Marshal Butcher of Missouri Valley.

MILWAUKEE CARS ARE BURGLARIZED

Shoe Consignment Looted in La Crosse; Brown Claims Innocence but Is Held

Earl Brown, claiming Seattle, Wash., as his home, was bound over to await the action of the circuit court this morning by Judge Brindley, he being held on the charge of burglary.

J. H. Bierbower, general inspector of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad company, complaining witness in the case, claims that on Aug. 9, a part of a consignment of shoes from the Bradley and Metcalf Shoe company, Milwaukee, to a Seattle firm, had been stolen from one of the Milwaukee cars between Milwaukee and St. Paul.

The car had been broken into and looted to such an extent that it had to be sent back to Milwaukee and the goods checked up.

Earl Brown was arrested by Patrolman Yehle on the north side several days ago and when arrested had in his possession several pair of shoes of the Bradley and Metcalf make which it is claimed, he had tried to sell previous to his arrest.

Brown will be held for trial at the October term of court and if convicted will be given a prison sentence. The three pair of shoes found in his possession are valued at $12.

We feel that an explanation is due for the lateness of this announcement. It is four weeks overdue and it is pretty generally known that we have already delivered about 5000 of the 1912 models.

Here are the facts: Some weeks ago we advised our dealers that we were going to put out the largest automobile advertisement ever printed—a "double-truck" in 200 newspapers. We naturally expected an enthusiastic response in the next mail. Instead came hundreds of telegrams in this vein: "For Heaven's sake, don't you fellows at the factory ever consider the poor dealer and his troubles? You know we can't get enough 20's or 30's to supply our trade; there are three customers waiting for every car that comes from the factory. Why aggravate the present situation by publishing another ad at this time?"

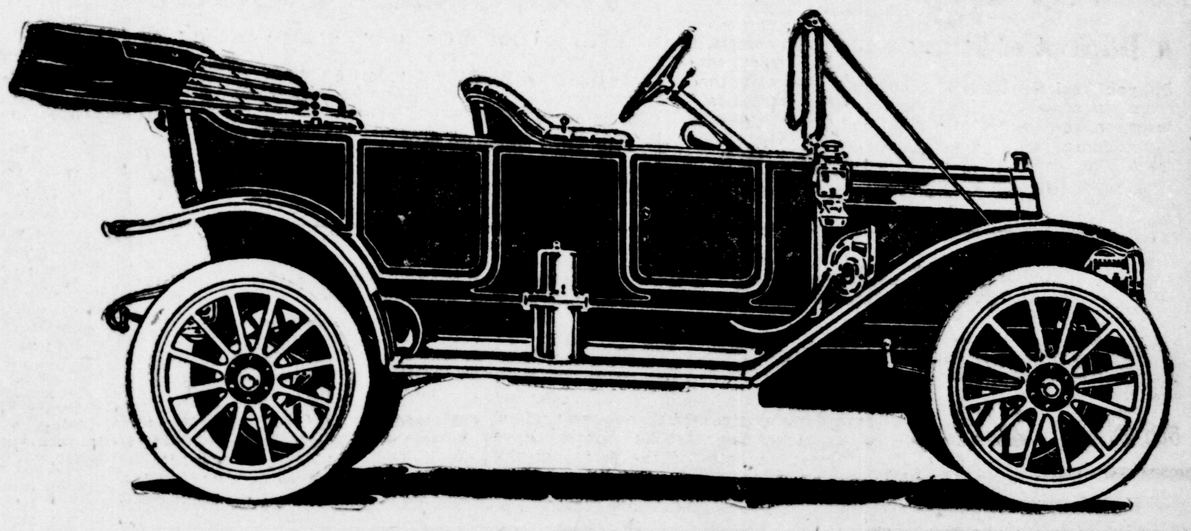

So we have violated all rules, and proceeded to deliver the 1912 models without first announcing them. And now we publish only one page instead of two—just enough to advise you of the fact and yet keep our dealers in good humor.

WE WILL BUILD 50,000 CARS IN 1912

20,000 E-M-F "30"s and 30,000 Flanders "20"s

E-M-F "30" Fore-Door Touring Car, $1100

Flanders "20" Fore-Door Touring Car, $800

RECENTLY OUR MR. FLANDERS WROTE a personal letter to all Studebaker-E-M-F Dealers asking for suggestions as to how Flanders "20" or E-M-F "30" models could be improved. The 2500 replies could be epitomized in the following, which we quote from one letter: "Only defect in either model is lack of cars to supply the demand. there are three customers waiting for each car that comes from the factory. Please don't try to make them any better—just make more.

NEVERTHELESS, "THE WORLD DO MOVE," said Galileo with his last gasp—and that is our only excuse for announcing any changes. Note we do not say improvements in either of our models for 1912.

JUST AT THIS TIME when other makers are tearing the air with declamations of their new and radically different models—condemning their product of the past and by just so much as they proclaim the superiority of their forthcoming effort, we can say, "Our 1912 model is just as good as that we sold in 1911—or 1910, 1909 or 1908.

CAN YOU APPRECIATE with what pride we make that statement—can you enjoy with us the exultation which comes from knowing that if in the future we can only give every buyer as great value for his dollar—as much satisfaction and pleasure in his purchase as in the past—we will have achieved the highest ambition of an honest business house.

TAKE FOR EXAMPLE our E-M-F "30" model. Never was there such a record of service and of satisfaction as the car has given its 30,000 owners. So flawless has been that record, we have today 30,000 salesmen—all working for love.

DO YOU KNOW THAT STUDEBAKER-E-M-F "30" is the oldest car in the world in its present form—this is its fourth year—and the few changes that have been made from time to time were in external appearances only—we have kept up with the styles in body design.

NO OTHER POWER PLANT has ever been able to equal this in performance—"Old Bullet," the ninth car we built holds several world's records for speed—84 miles an hour on Atlanta Speedway, and she and the others of that first famous litter hold all world's records for endurance. Every one of them are in service today and many of the first five hundred have over 100,000 miles of rough roads toured to their credit.

TAKE CAR No. 2, for example: It is in New Mexico. Owner writes: "Friends who have purchased your later models on my recommendation tell me their cars are great; but after four years of driving over Western trails, I tell you I don't believe you ever built another car quite as good as my No. 2."

ISN'T IT SPLENDID to get letters like that? Car No. 1? Why that car—our first—was used for two years at the factory as a demonstrator and was then put in the hardest kind of service as a "pick-up wagon" at the factory, doing heavy truck work. Can't kill her—looks as if she was good for twenty years or more of the same kind of work.

WHEN OUR DEALERS COME TO THE FACTORY it is a favorite stunt to take a ride in Old No. 1—on top of a load of castings, perhaps. And each time they marvel at the durability of the old car—knowing though they do the quality of all E-M-F "30" cars.

THAT IS WHY WE HESITATE to claim any real improvement in our 1912 model E-M-F "30" over any previous model—persons who know will doubt our ability to improve on perfection—or what they consider the nearest approach to perfection that has ever been attained in a motor car.

BUT WE HAVE MADE A FEW minor changes that may rightfully be called improvements. Here are some you will agree are better: Longer wheel base—now 112 inches—permitting of lengthened body, giving more room in front as well as rear seat. Body is also several inches wider, making ample room for three 200-pounders in rear seat; drop frame instead of former straight frame, gives lower center of gravity and lower, more rakish appearance to car. Springs are longer also—both front and rear—always the easiest riding car, it is still more velvety in motion.

A FEW MECHANICAL CHANGES — not necessarily improvements, though of course our engineers think they are—are improved steering gear—better facilities for oiling and adjusting. At the same time we have emulated the $5000 cars by placing spark and throttle levers on top of steering wheel; large steering wheel of Circassian Walnut, gives classy appearance and makes "thumb and finger control" possible.

NO CHANGE IN MOTOR—you will be pleased to hear that. Fact is we would not dare make the slightest change in that wonderful motor for fear we could never again get quite as powerful a one.

NEITHER HAS THERE BEEN any change in transmission, control, axle or chassis detail, save only those mentioned—the drop frame and longer springs.

E-M-F "30" IS MORE BEAUTIFUL, though, than ever before. Truth to tell, we have always thought there was room for improvement in the outward appearance of this car. But you must remember that in order to give our customers the highest degree of mechanical excellence, in past years we had to design the body severely plain. And we are proud of that policy—other makers adopted the opposite policy, made cars that misled buyers by their looks—and are now either in the junk heap or on the way there—expected soon.

BUT NOW IT IS DIFFERENT—we have our mammoth plants and they are paid for. We have a more perfect organization. Practically unlimited capital enables us to buy better—and prices of all materials are lower.

SO NOW WE CAN ADD appearance to efficiency—luxurious appointments to mechanical perfection—and sell you that much better car in 1912 for the same price you paid in 1911—and for $150 less than we had to charge in 1908-9 and 10.

WE HAVE PROMISED from the first to improve wherever and whenever possible and to "divide with the buyer the savings we effect by our superior facilities." This 1912 announcement is the fulfillment of that promise.

FOR THE PRICE HAS NOT BEEN INCREASED—the big, luxurious, fore-door model will remain at $1100 F. O. B. factory. Let those try who may, none can equal this value. They never have been able to and it is no part of our plan that they ever shall.

THE BODY IS A BEAUTY—of the most improved "straight line" type—perfectly straight from front to rear. All levers inside; door latches concealed; large ventilators in dash so it is just as cool in front as in rear. Also we provide so doors can stand ajar, so speed of car sucks out warm air permitting cool air to replace it constantly. Actual thermometer tests show our front compartment to be cooler than rear. Only objection to fore-door design eliminated.

IN A WORD the Studebaker-E-M-F "30" will continue to be in 1912, as it has always been, the best car in the world at less than $2500—the first choice in its class of all well informed buyers. Others thrive on our leavings—they live because we cannot supply the full demand, even making, as we do, one hundred of these cars every day.

MADE IN FOUR MODELS for 1912: Fore-door Five-Passenger Touring Car, $1100; Fore-door Detachable Demi-Tonneau, $1100; Fore-door Roadster, $1100, and Coupe, $1450. Full detailed specifications in the catalog.

THE STORY OF FLANDERS "20" is even more simply told. There is no change in this sterling model—not the slightest, either in mechanical detail or in appearance. We could see no chance for improvements.

SHE HAS COME INTO HER OWN—never was more signal victory than this car has achieved. Never did any automobile enjoy a greater over-demand than Flanders "20" does now, and with an output of 100 a day at that.

YOU WILL REMEMBER that, like all new models, Flanders "20" did not come up to Designer Heaslet's hopes the first season—1909-10. There were several minor defects.

WE SAID SO FRANKLY in our ad. announcing the improved 1911 three speed model. Competitors criticised us severely—said it was bad business to "tell all we knew to the public." Well, perhaps—only it didn't work out that way—much to their chagrin.

WE USE STRONG STATEMENTS in our ads.—we have the goods and ordinary terms cannot do justice to them. So do others deal in superlatives—when they are proclaiming hoped-for virtues. Past errors they are singularly silent about, however.

WE HAD TO ADMIT that the two-speed idea was wrong for a touring car. Its only advantage was cheapness of manufacture, and, while we had the customer's interest at heart when we designed the two-speed Flanders "20," we found we were mistaken and that the customer—experienced buyers, anyway—would gladly pay a trifle more to have the added efficiency and superior control of a three-speed selective sliding gear transmission.

WHILE WE WERE ABOUT IT we designed the handsomest fore-door touring body that ever was seen on a moderate priced car.

AND WHAT A RECORD she has made—it is simply splendid. Discredited by her past, dealers and individual buyers alike were supercritical. Competitors "knocked" for fair and tried to convince buyers that the three-speed model was really no great improvement over the former two-speed. We sometimes think this very knocking was our greatest advertisement, for, of course, the public knew that the man whose name this car bore would stand back of the product—it had been his pride from the first.

SO THEY DETERMINED TO TRY the new car out. And they certainly did figure out some gruelling tests—speed, hill climbing, mud plugging, sand fighting—every imaginable stunt that could break down a car or prove her ability. And Flanders "20" always came up smiling. The astonishment of her opponents was something to see. From that time she has forged steadily ahead, sweeping from her path every would-be rival till today she is acknowledged leader. Dealers tell us there would be no other light touring car sold if they could get enough three-speed Flanders "20's" to fill the demand.

IN LARGE CITIES buyers are so well informed they simply won't accept substitutes—they will order six months ahead and wait for Flanders "20" rather than take an assembled or a "tin car" as a substitute. But in smaller towns, where there are fewer cars and folks don't have as good a chance to compare performance and durability, dealers are still able to persuade buyers the imitations are "just as good." That is where the "tin cars" thrive.

WE HAD IN MIND in designing this car, the great class of well-to-do business men who want a family touring car of high efficiency, seating five and capable of taking them anywhere—people who want a car of sterling quality and yet feel they cannot afford a car as large as E-M-F "30."

NOW WE COULD HAVE DONE as we did with E-M-F "30" five year ago—designed with an eye single to mechanical excellence and without regard to appearance. But that day has passed. The opinions of other makers to the contrary notwithstanding, we believe the farmer and the man in the village has just as artistic a sense—is just as well informed on up-to-date design as the city man. And we determined to make a handsome car as well as a good one.

NOW THAT COSTS MORE, OF COURSE—there is actually over $250 more factory cost in Flanders "20" than in any of its competitors—yet there is not nearly that difference in the selling price.

NOW COMPARE THEM. Ask your local dealer to drive his Flanders "20" demonstrator up beside one of the several makes of "tin cars" so you can see the wonderful difference.

COMPARE POINT FOR POINT—the French-type bonnet of the Flanders with the simple, cheap-looking—and cheap—motor cover on the front of the other. The full fenders of the Flanders with the scrawny, tinny-looking mudguards of cars that presume to compete with it. Even the equipment—lamps, top, windshield, are superior in looks and in quality.

APPEARANCE IS IMPORTANT. However matter-of-fact a man may claim to be, his wife and daughters crave the artistic and the beautiful. And Flanders "20" is their choice because there they find it to as great a degree as in the highest priced car on the market.

YOUR MECHANICAL SENSE will also be appeased—we are talking to you, Mr. Practical Man—if you will investigate chassis details and power plant. You will find a four-cylinder motor of most approved French type and a transmission like that in E-M-F "30"—same excellent axle design, too, and you will find, if you know steel, that the materials that go into this car are not surpassed in quality by that used in any automobile at any price—bar none.

FLANDERS "20" HAS NO RIVAL when you consider all points. No other car on the market gives the buyer so much mechanical excellence and so much to be proud of in appearance as the Flanders "20" at $800.

HERE'S AN EXCERPT from a letter written to one of our dealers by a certain Detroit manufacturer: "Why not take on ten or fifteen of our cars? You know you cannot get Flanders "20's" enough to supply your trade. Your customers get impatient waiting and you may lose some sales. We have cars in stock and can ship at once. Besides our discounts to dealers are larger."

BUT THAT DEALER DIDN'T FALL—you never heard of a dealer giving up the Studebaker-E-M-F line. Never heard of a dealer handling any other if he could get this one. Dealers want cars that sell themselves—that are backed by a guarantee for a full year, and that really says something.

EVERY STUDEBAKER DEALER IS JEALOUS of the proud position he occupies—he is honored and respected above all rivals in his own community because he sells the best cars and keeps his word—the cars make good. And the manufacturer backs him up. He will not sacrifice that proud position for a few chance sales, nor for a bigger rake-off will he sell to his townsmen cars that he knows are unsalable elsewhere.

OUR ONLY PROBLEM IS DELIVERY. We are not going to make any rash promises. We cannot promise to deliver every car that is ordered. All we can do is to repeat that we are making one hundred per day now! That we are doubling our factory facilities as fast as bricks can be laid and machinery installed! That we will be making two hundred a day within ninety days and will work full force all winter in hopes of catching up with the demand—but that is the limit of our ability for the present.

FOUR MODELS OF THIS CAR ALSO FOR 1912. Fore-door, 5-Passenger Touring Car—slightly smaller than E-M-F "30," not quite so speedy—45 miles per hour—but just as efficient; 4-Passenger Suburban—ideal car for rural residents; 2-Passenger Coupe, and 2-Passenger Runabout. Full detailed specifications in catalog.

TAFT VETOES THE FREE LIST BILL

Withholds Approval Because Tariff Board Is Not Yet Ready to to Report

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—President Taft late yesterday sent to the house his third veto of a tariff measure, returning the farmers free list bill without his approval.

In summarizing his reasons for vetoing the free list bill, the president said:

"I withhold my approval from this bill first because it should not be considered until the tariff board shall make report on the schedules it affects;

"Second, because the bill is so loosely drawn as to involve the government in endless litigation, and to leave the commercial community in disastrous doubt;

"Third, because it places the finished product on the free list but retains on the dutiable list the raw material and the machinery with which such finished product is made and thus puts at a needless disadvantage our American manufacturers.

"And fourth, that while purporting by putting agricultural instruments, meats and flour on the free list, to reduce their price to consumers, it does not do so, but only gives to Canada valuable concessions which might be used by the executive to expand reciprocity with that country in accordance with the direction of congress."

In this connection the president declared that the language in the bill referring to agricultural implements was so sweeping as to affect many sections of the present tariff. He asserted that the provisions of the bill were so ambiguous that the treasury department has been unable to estimate the amount of reduction in revenue which it would effect.

MOBS WOULD LYNCH ACCUSED DENTIST

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal., Aug. 19.—Despite the charges made against Dentist A. W. McDavitt by Jessie McDonald, the long missing high school girl and others, the dentist's wife refuses to be worried. "His alleged victims were willing so I don't care. He always treated me well."

The police examined Irene Gibson, who alleges she is another victim of McDavitt.

Miss McDonald has abandoned her plan of defending McDavitt. The dentist was ready to furnish bonds for his release when arrested on a statutory charge but decided not to leave the jail fearing mob violence. Early today a mob formed outside of McDavitt's office. The office was invaded and stripped.

JULIA MARLOWE IS WEDDED TO SOTHERN

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Cablegrams late yesterday told of the marriage in London of E. H. Sothern and Julia Marlowe, the most prominent co-stars in the theatrical world. Rumors of the romance were heard shortly after Virginia Harned obtained a divorce from Sothern in Reno last October, but neither Sothern or Miss Marlowe admitted their intention of marrying.

SHARK WAS HUNGRY

LEWSES, Del., Aug. 19.—An umbrella, several yards of oil cloth and more than a hundred pounds of iron and steel junk were found inside a seventeen foot shark caught yesterday.

CALHOUN AT THE OCULIST'S

La Follette's Story of the Darky Waiter Applied to Those Who Fear Reciprocity.

United States Senator La Follette, discussing reciprocity, said with a smile:

"These fears are groundless. They are groundless to the point of being ludicrous. They remind me, in fact, of Calhoun Clay.

"Calhoun Clay was a waiter at a seaside restaurant. The white glare of the sun-drenched beach injured his eyes, and he had to consult an oculist. The oculist fitted him out with spectacles, and, as he left the shop with the spectacles on his nose, he gave a great start and halted before a huge and extraordinary machine.

"Calhoun stared in awe at this machine for some time. Then he said:

"'Wha's dat, boss?'

"'That,' said the oculist solemnly, 'is an ophthalmometer.'

"'Sho',' muttered Calhoun, and he backed farther away, his eyes still fixed upon the formidable instrument —'sho', dat's what Ah wuz afared it wuz.'"

RACE AROUND THE WORLD NEAR END

NEW YORK, Aug. 19. — When Andre Jager-Schmidt stepped aboard the steamship Olympic today he began the second last lap of his globe circling race against time. Fearful of being delayed by the English strike if he went to Liverpool, he changed his mind yesterday and came here to take passage for Cherbourg. He is due there on August 25, and an aeroplane will take him to Paris, which he must reach by August 26, to finish his trip in the prescribed forty days.

PLANTING SOME BIG ONES

WOULD EXTEND I. C. C. WORK TO ALASKA

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—A bill was introduced in the senate yesterday by Poindexter (Rep., Wash.), to extend the jurisdiction of the interstate commerce commission to the railroads of Alaska. In explaining the measure, Poindexter said it also provided for the immediate opening up of the most available coal fields. It empowers the secretary of war to construct a railroad from Controller Bay to the coal fields, and authorizes the operation of a steamship line from Controller Bay to some suitable point on Puget Sound.

Poindexter said the securing of a coal supply had become a matter of necessity to the people of Washington and those of Alaska. He asserted that some plan must be devised to utilize the deposits of Alaska for the benefit of the Pacific coast.

GRANDMOTHERS' BEAUTIFUL HAIR

Color and Beauty of the Hair Preserved With a Harmless Remedy Made From Sage

Druggists everywhere comment on the fact that they are selling large quantities of sage for making old-fashioned "sage tea," such as was used by our grandmothers for promoting the growth of their hair, making it fluffy and beautiful and restoring its natural color.

The demand for this well-known herb for this purpose has been so great that one manufacturer has taken advantage of the fact and has placed on the market an ideal "sage tea," containing sulphur, a valuable remedy for dandruff and scalp rashes and irritations, called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy.

The manufacturers of this remedy authorize druggists to sell it under guarantee that the money will be refunded if it fails to do exactly as represented.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists.

GOSSLING IS PICKED TO HEAD SWIMMERS

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 19.—Gus Gossling, star swimmer of the Missouri A. C., is picked my Swimming Instructor Frank Sullivan to win the ten mile river swim for the national A. A. U. championship today. His next three bets are Chauncey Heath, M. A. C.:: Merriam, Chicago A. A., and Millard Kaiser, M. A. C.

All these Sullivan puts ahead of Mike McDermott, the 18 year old wonder of Chicago, who finished second to Bud Goodwin in the race last year.

McDermott has been practicing in the M. A. C. tank this week and the swimming instructor insists his trials show poor condition for the long grind.

MILWAUKEE TROLLEY MEN MAY STRIKE

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 18.—What may be the nucleus of a repetition here of the recent street car strike troubles at Des Moines, Iowa, became evident yesterday in a petition in behalf of the employes of the local street railway system protesting against their hours of labor and demanding higher pay. The brief was submitted to the Wisconsin railroad commission by John Humphrey, secretary of the state board of arbitration. The document contains thirty-two typewritten pages expressing throughout general dissatisfaction among the employes and demanding better working conditions.

ST. PAUL GIRL WILL WED TURK DIPLOMAT

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Aug. 19.—Dressed in a light crash suit and looking much like an American business man, Richard Edward Blacque Bey, first secretary of the Turkish embassy at Berlin, arrived in St. Paul yesterday. He will marry Miss Josephine Kalman of St. Paul Aug. 4, and among the other arrivals for the wedding was Miss Kathleen Beresford, daughter of Admiral Charles Beresford of England. Miss Beresford is to be a bridesmaid at the wedding.

WHY CELEBRITIES ARE FEW

Their Absence Permits the Imitation Swells to Shake Hands In a Sane Manner.

"Even if I didn't read the newspapers I would know that there are not many strange celebrities in town now," said the young man with strong social instincts.

"I could tell by the way the imitation swells shake hands. Everybody shakes hands now in a safe and sane manner. Not for weeks have my fingers been tweaked in freakish fashion. That is because the shakers have met no one to set a bad example.

"Peculiarities in a handshake are more contagious than fads in accent or clothes. Nearly every person of importance has his own way of grasping another's hand, and the small fry who ape their big brothers in everything else mighty soon copy that shake. In the busy social season when the big guns come and go pretty frequently the person of imitative habits will shake hands in a dozen different ways in as many weeks."

Saved By Its Tick.

The last thing the woman did was to put four rings in the clock on the mantel.

"So thieves won't get them," she said. "I should think that would be simply inviting thieves to run away with them," said her friend. "That is a handsome clock, and thieves like clocks."

"They do," said the woman, "but they will never steal this clock. It ticks too loud. No wise thief will run away with a clock that goes like a thrashing machine. It isn't the alarm about his person that he is afraid of, for he can stop the clock, but the occupants of the flat are likely to return before he gets safely away, and if a loud-ticking clock is gone they will miss it the minute they step inside the door, and maybe given him a hot chase for his plunder."

BODY FOUND IN SCHOOL

KENOSHA, Wis., Aug. 19.—An inquest was held here today in an effort to clear the mysterious circumstances surrounding the finding of the body of Hugo Anger, 37, member of a prominent Milwaukee family, in a deserted school house late yesterday. An autopsy failed to throw any light on the mystery. Police believe Anger was murdered in some mysterious manner and the body carted to the building where it was found.

DANIEL WEBSTER OWNED LAND HERE

Tract Where Cooksville Now Stands Once the Property of Great Statesman

MADISON, Wis., Aug. 19.—(Special.)—That Daniel Webster was a landholder in Wisconsin in early days is a little known fact. While visiting his birthplace at Cooksville, a village about six miles from Tvansville, in Rock county, well known for its secluded and undemonstrative existence, L. B. Ring, of Neillsville, probation officer for the state board of control, uncovered interesting historical facts. A large tract of land, upon part of which Cooksville now stands, was owned in territorial days by the immortal Webster. He was a busy man, and never got time to travel out west to take account of his possessions, but he turned it in on an account to his family physician, Dr. John Porter, who, with his family, left Marshfield, Mass., then the home of the Websters, and settled at Cooksville, being followed later by a brother. From that time to this the Porters have been prominent in that community, a considerable number of that name still residing there. The main street of Cooksville is Webster street, named in honor of the great constitutional expounder.

Cooksville abounds with mounds, the remains of a race of pioneers who built a fine old New England town, whose architecture still tells of Dicky Hough, an English builder, who was brought west by the Porters to build the town.

Ralph L. Warner, teacher of arts and crafts of the Racine high school, has transformed an ancient mansion into a summer home, while others of refined and quiet tastes have delighted to make the village a summer resort. The large square in the center of the town has a church in the center, Puritan fashion, and there isn't a store nor a phone in the entire town.

Grain Letter

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—Wheat opened with a lively session today, the tone easy for all except September wheat. A little later there was a sharp upturn following Minneapolis which advanced nearly two cents after breaking seven-eighths at the outset. There was a continuation of the unfavorable threshing reports from the American northwest.

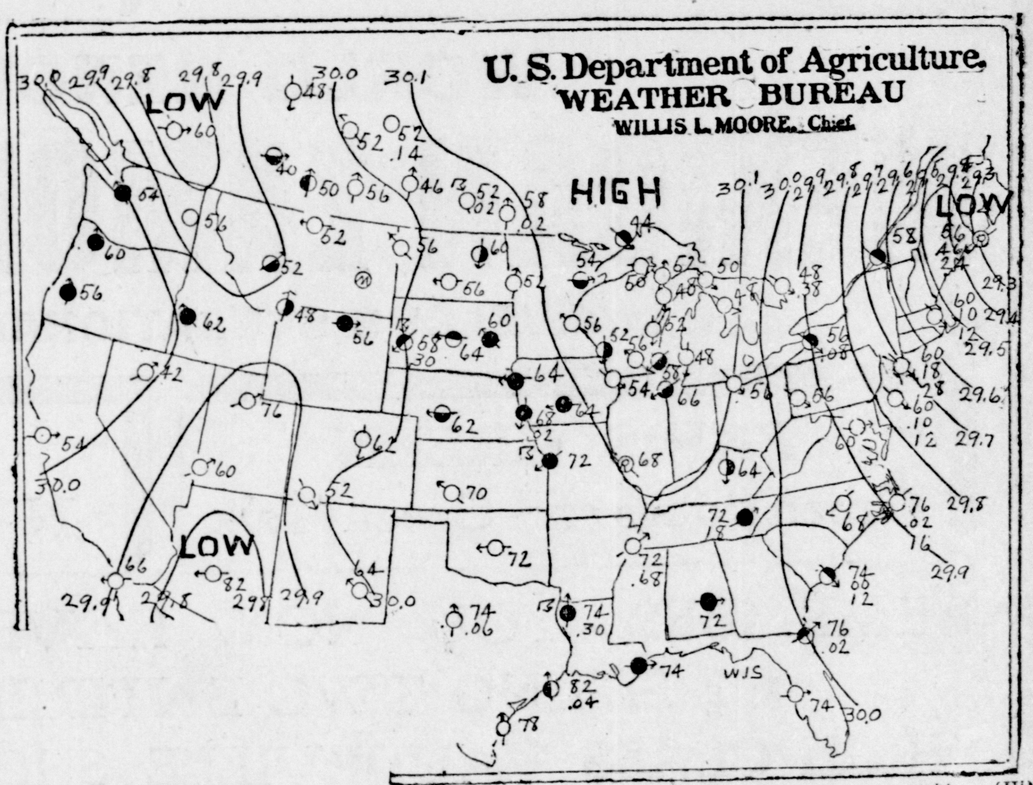

The corn market was easier early in the day and gave way after the early buying ceased. Offerings of old corn from the country were liberal and there is prospect of a substantial increase in the marketing next week.

Oats developed considerable strength under liberal buying led by the leading longs in September corn who bought December oats and also by a few commission houses who bought May oats.

Provisions were firmer under fairly good commission buying. Lard was most in demand but the advance brought free offers.

BOSTON, Aug. 19.—Reulbach's wildness in the first inning lost yesterday's game for the Cubs. Reulbach let in three runs on three passes and a hit batsman. BONDIES TAKE LAST OF SERIES

Blancke Pounded Hard by the Outcasts, While Price Is at His Best; Score 4 to 0

LOCALS PLAY A GREAT GAME

Sensational Fielding Blanks White Sox; Kernan and Schuler Are O. K.

With the return of Joe Kernan and Umpire Schuler to the national amusement, the whole show was complete yesterday and the Outcasts celebrated the return of the second sacker by handing the Duluth White Sox a 4 to 0 whaling, splitting the series with the northern crabs.

Duluth put up an Outcast exhibition while the aspirants for low water came back at the northerners with class A ball. From the start Pitcher Price had everything coming his way, sending shoots over the plate so rapidly that the Darbs never had a look in.

Blancke on the other hand proved pie for the Bondies who punished the cork with untiring regularity, geting a tally whenever desired. However, the slab man didn't have anything on his backing, who pulled off one of the most complicated bonehead plays ever witnessed in organized baseball, allowing the Bondies to run around the bases at will while they heaved the ball, first to one sack, then to another, only to find that they were a trifle too late and that two runs had been scored.

At times the game was marked by sensational playing by both clubs but the Outcasts took the lead in this as well as in the scoring, Snyder shining as the individual star of the exhibition. A fast double by Snyder and Black was the feature of the game.

The contest opened, nip and tuck, and during the first two innings neither club had an advantage. In the third, with one down, Malloy reached first on a walk, Blancke failing to locate the rubber. Kelly lifted the cork for a safe hit and "Little Eddie" bumped the hide for a tally. Safford went out to center garden and Kernan was benched by the strikeout route with Kelly and Klein holding the sacks.

In the sixth the balloon was cut loose. Safford and Kernan pumped out a couple of one base biffs and Wais did the charitable act. Black reached first on an infield swat, the sphere being thrown to the plate to cut off a run, which it failed to accomplish. Black started to steal second and was cornered between the bases, and while the Darbyites were attempting to run him down, Kernan went in, and Black reached second on the throw to the rubber to catch Kernan. However, the second sacker had time to spare and scored. Snyder then donated his share of the day's work by sending out a clean little Texas leaguer, sending Black home. Price went out on a fly to short.

GOPHER FOOTBALL TEAM IS STRONG

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Aug. 19.—Earle Pickering, captain of the 1911 Minnesota football team, returned from a canoe trip which has lasted all summer. He appeared optimistic as to the Minnesota eleven, despite the fact that James Walker, all-American tackle; Bromley, picked by several for a place on the all-Western at guard; McGovern, the star quarter, and Johnston, the speedy back, will be lost to the team, with several other lesser lights.

Walker plans to enter the University of Pennsylvania and Bromley may go to Harvard. The others have played their three years. Pickering will again play left end this year.
